I. GENERAL

CHAPTER 1

JAPANESE POLITICS IN 1960

Tomio Muto

The point from which we begin this survey of the current Japanese political scene will be the general nation-wide election of representatives to the Upper House of the Diet on June 2, 1959. At that time 330 candidates entered the contest for the 127 seats in the House of Councillors. These 127 seats are representative, some of the nation-at-large and some of local constituencies.

Socialist Party strategy in this election was to obtain majority of the Upper House and to hold an effective lever on the Diet. However the election results thoroughly dashed their hopes. The majority Liberal Democrat Party, instead of losing, gained five seats and the Socialists had to be satisfied that they managed to get one-third of the seats and thus could make sure that the Liberal-Democrats could not push through a revision of the Constitution.

A tabulation of these election results follows:

Party	Seats from National Elections	Seats from Local Elections	Total
Liberal-Democrat	22	49	71
Socialist	17	21	38
Communist	1	0	1
Ryokufukai	4	2	6
Political Federation of Medium & Small Enterprises	1	0	1

Independents	7	3	10
Total	52	75	127

Popular Vote Tabulated by Parties

Liberal-Democrat	12,120,597	15,667,022
Socialist	7,794,795	10,265,393
Communist	551,915	999,255
Ryokufukai	2,382,703	731,383
Political Federation of Small & Medium Enterprises	598,519	0
Minor Parties	154,742	155,189

The Formation of the Third Kishi Cabinet

On June 18, 1959, Premier Nobusuke Kishi, restored to position on the basis of popular support, reshuffled his Cabinet. Save that the Foreign Minister Aiichirō Fujiyama and the Financial Minister Eisaku Satō remained, all other ministers were new to his Cabinet.

Ichirō Kōnō, one of the leaders of the Liberal-Democrat Party refused to join the Cabinet in spite of Kishi's eager request. On the other hand Kishi succeeded in making Hayato Ikeda enter the Cabinet as the Minister of Trade and Industry. Ikeda was the leader of the so-called "Yoshida faction," which was considered an anti-Kishi group. Thus Kishi's Cabinet was strengthened during the latter half of 1959.

Split in the Socialist Party

The defeat the Socialist Party suffered in the Tokyo gubernatorial election and the Upper House election reopened the conflict between right and left wing party elements. From September 12 to 15, 1959, the General Convention of the Socialist Party was held. Prior to the convention, Suehiro Nishio, the leader of the Rightists, had criticized the policy of the Socialists Party as being too dominated by left wing partisans. This gave rise to controversy among delegates to the convention. When Nishio was accused of being against the policy of the party, he and his followers withdrew from the convention. On October 25, Nishio and his faction seceded from the party.

New Democratic Socialist Party

On January 24, 1960, Nishio and his followers organized the Democratic-Socialist Party and Nishio himself was elected chairman of its executive committee. Thirty-seven members of the Lower House and 16 members of the Upper House joined the new party.

As for the labor unions which had been supporters of the Socialists, the so-called Sōhyō (Japan General Convention of Labor Unions) stayed with the old Socialist Party. The so-called Zenrō (Nation-wide Federation of Labor Unions) switched its support to the Democratic-Socialist Party. The latter made it its platform to represent the people belonging to the middle-of-the-road.

U.S.—Japan Mutual Security Treaty Revised

The revision of the Japan-America Security Treaty became the subject of diplomacy when Foreign Minister Fujiyama talked about it with U.S. Secretary of State Dulles at Washington D.C. in September, 1958.

Negotiation between the two states was taken up in April, 1959, and continued until January 6, 1960, when the final draft was formulated with the approval of the diplomatic representatives of both governments. The main points of the revision are as follows:

1. The new treaty clarified the duty of mutual defense of the two states,—Japan's duty of defense being subjected to the limitation of her Constitution. (The existant treaty was unilateral.)
2. The new treaty provided that, when U. S. forces in Japan wish to take overseas action, the U. S. Government must gain the prior consent of the Japanese Government. (No such provision in the existing treaty).
3. The terminal date of the treaty shall be 10 years after its ratification. (No. terminal date in the existing treaty.)

Once the draft of the new treaty became the subject of debate, the opposition to it by the Socialist Party became the more intense. Sōhyō and Zengakuren (National-Federation of Students' Self-Government Association) also stood at the front of the anti-treaty movement. Most of the so-called intellectual people joined them.

Opposition to the Treaty Mounts

The first huge demonstration against the treaty took place on November 27, 1959. Sōhyō and Zengakuren assembled about 27,000 laborers and students. They rushed into the compound of the Diet Building to indicate their opposition. The reasons why they were opposed so vehemently to this treaty were as follows:

1. It threatens to involve Japan in warfare between the Soviet Union and America.
2. It makes the Soviet Union and Red China the imaginary enemy of Japan and tries to sever the freindly relation between Japan and these states.
3. It brings to Japan insecurity instead of security, because Japan's security can be maintained by its being neutral and having no armament according to the Constitution.

4. The existing treaty (which was concluded in 1956) should be in due time abolished instead of being revised. The revision does not serve to improve the international relations of Japan, but destines her to a position as America's subordinate.

Christians' Rally Against the Treaty

About one thousand Christians gathered in the hall of the National Railway Labourers Building on January 15, 1960, to hold an anti-treaty meeting. Several Christian leaders, belonging to the United Church or other denominations, spoke at this meeting against the treaty.

A missionary, professor of Tokyo Union Seminary also spoke in commendation of Christian expression of social responsibility; he refrained from comment on the purpose of the rally. After that they marched through the main street of Tokyo, singing hymns. This was the "quiet demonstration," and the first political rally held by Protestants in Japanese history.

The Christians' aspiration for peace was the motive for their anti-treaty campaign. They thought that the revision of the existing treaty is liable to involve the Japanese in war. To avoid this, it is imperative to stand against the treaty. Their action, as they expressed it, "is based on the teachings of the New Testament."

Premier Kishi Left Japan for U. S. to Sign the Treaty

On January 16, Premier Kishi left the Tokyo International airport for the United States to sign the treaty. Early in the morning, Zengakuren students besieged the lobby of the airport to obstruct Kishi's passage. However, Kishi eluded this demonstration and safely left Japan for Washington D. C. On January 19, he met President Eisenhower at the White House. Kishi and Eisenhower signed the treaty that same day.

The Japan-America Security Treaty was laid before the Lower House of the Diet on January 30 and it was immediately referred to a Committee of 45 members, belonging to the Liberal-Democrat Party, Socialist Party, and the Democratic-Socialist Party. Most of the interrogators at the committee meetings were Socialists and Democratic-Socialists. The main points of the interpellation were:

1. What is the area of "the Far East" mentioned in the preamble?
2. Can the Japanese government answer "no" when previously consulted by the American Government concerning the overseas action of the American forces in Japan?
3. Whether this treaty is of aggressive nature or defensive nature?
4. Doesn't this treaty amount to a military alliance between the U. S. and Japan?
5. Isn't the treaty contrary to the Peace Constitution?
6. Isn't the term of the treaty (10 years) too long?

The answers by Premier Kishi and Foreign Minister Fujiyama clarified these points though sometimes their answers were equivocal and there was some inconsistency.

Their answers are summarized as follows:

1. The Far East includes the sea area, north of the Philippines, around Formosa, around South Korea, Japan Sea, around South Kurile Islands.
2. The American Government will never take action against the will of the Japanese Government.
3. The treaty is of defensive nature.
4. The treaty does not mean military alliance between both states, but aims at maintaining the security of Japan.

5. The Japanese self-defence corps will act within the limitation of the Constitution even when it acts according to the provision of the treaty.
6. The term 10 years is adequate, because the length of the term serves to stabilize the Japanese-American relation.

The Socialists and Democratic-Socialists continued their questionings. The Diet session was to adjourn on May 26. However, it seemed that the opposing parties were determined not to bring an end to their interpellations. On the other hand, demonstrations against the treaty outside were held now and again while it was being discussed in the House. The Socialist Party succeeded in organizing "The People's Council Against the Ratification of the Treaty" consisting of the Party, Zengakuren, Sōhyō, Anti-atomic-hydrogen-bombs Association and Japan-China Friendship Association. At first, the demonstrations were carried on in the form of each individual presenting petitions to the House. The Socialists announced that 20 million people presented petitions against the treaty.

The Government and the Liberal-Democratic Party wished to put an end to the committee session and to send the treaty to the plenary session of the Lower House for action. However, they could not do it because the opposing parties insisted that, since the answers given by the Government were unsatisfactory, they had many more points to be clarified by the Government authorities. Their objective seemed to be to continue the deliberation to the end of the Diet session and thus to defeat the treaty by never letting it out of committee.

The Government party, in order to cope with their opponents' strategy, sought to extend the Diet session. For this purpose, Speaker Kiyose tried to open the plenary session of the House on May 19. However, more than one hundred Socialists blocked the entrance of the Speaker's room by sitting on the floor in order to prevent the Speaker of the House from going out. The statesman announced through a public address system that those who besieged his room should retreat instantly to make way for him. He did so many times. However, the opponents did not leave. Instead, they rushed to the door of the Speaker's room and broke it. The Democratic-Socialists did not join this move. Then Kiyose called in 300 policemen to the House. In reaction, the Socialist representatives and their followers lay down on the floor completely stopping exit and entrance to the Speaker's room. The police were thus forced to remove them bodily so that the ordinary processes of a democratic parliament could proceed.

This commotion which began at 11 o'clock came to an end at 7 minutes to 12 midnight when the passage was cleared by the policemen and Koyose entered the Diet chamber. He called the day's session to order and himself laid the motion to extend the Diet term by 50 days. In the chamber were more than two hundred Liberal-Democrat members, who unanimously approved the motion. The Diet was extended until July 15.

If the Tories had stopped here and not gone so far as to pass the controversial Japan—U. S. Security Treaty immediately, the greatest crisis of postwar Japanese politics possibly would not have taken place.

At 12:16 a.m. the Liberal-Democrat members unanimously approved the treaty at the plenary session opened a few minutes after the extension of the term was decided. The opposition members, not only Socialists but also Democratic-Socialists and Independents, had boycotted the session.

Thus, the treaty was certain to be approved by the Diet on June 19—the day when President Dwight D. Eisenhower was due to visit Japan. According to Article 61 of the Constitution, in the event the Upper House fails to act during a Diet session on a bill or treaty within 30 days after receiving it from the Lower House, the decision of the Lower House shall be the decision of the Diet.

The Opposition Forsakes Diet in Favor of Streets

On May 21 a crowd of more than 40,000 including Sōhyō, Socialists, Communists, and about 10,000 students of Zengakuren demonstrated outside the Diet, protesting the passage of the treaty. A group of students attempted to rush into the Diet and also to break into the Premier's official residence. Police rushed to the scene and more than 200 persons were injured. This demonstration was organized and directed by "The People's Council Against the Ratification of the Treaty."

Socialists and Democratic-Socialists continued to boycott all Diet proceedings, deciding to stay out of the Diet.

In the evening of May 26 about 7,000 Zengakuren members surrounded the Diet to imprison Premier Kishi. An equal number of police guarded the premises. The students threw stones at the police and the police attacked the students by turning water hoses upon them. Premier Kishi could not return home until 10:15 p. m.

Demonstrations and rallies were held throughout the country in protest against the treaty. The People's Council Against the Treaty announced that 2 million people took part in the nationwide demonstrations on this day. In Tokyo about 170,000 took part in the anti-treaty demonstrations.

In spite of such protests, Premier Kishi declared that he would never surrender before such demonstrations. He insisted that any political action whatsoever should be taken within the Diet. Lately he stated that if he had resigned because of demonstrations, the basic principle of democracy would have been infringed ; that, as the Liberal-Democrat Party had an absolute majority and the latest local elections and the Upper House election had ended in the triumph of his Party, what his Government and his Party did represents the opinion of the majority of Japanese people ; and that he would not dissolve the Diet before the treaty was ratified.

Enraged by Kishi's stern attitude, the Socialists and People's Council organized a general strike to be held on June 4. On June 2, the Socialists held a general convention and decided that all the Socialist members of the Diet should resign their seats in the Lower House. Each filed the letter of resignation to Inejiro Asanuma, chairman of the Socialist Party Executive Committee to have him present it to Kiyose at the time when Asanuma would think profitable.

On June 4, the general strike was carried out. It was peaceful and orderly. No police intervention or violence on the part of strikers were seen. Sōhyō claimed that about 5,600,000 persons participated in the unified struggle against Kishi and the treaty, demanding dissolution of the Diet.

Meanwhile the Government declared that the invitation to President Eisenhower to come to Japan in honor of the 100th anniversary of the opening of Japan—American relations still stood. Therefore it remained definite that he would come to Japan on June 19 as scheduled. On June 4 demonstrators clamoured not only against Kishi and the treaty, but also against Eisenhower's coming. On that night about 12,000 students, laborers, and intellectuals converged upon the American Embassy to stage a mass protest against the scheduled coming of the U. S. President.

Hagerty Welcomed by Violence

At the same time as the Kishi Cabinet declared that it would never change the plan of inviting Eisenhower to Japan, the U. S. Government announced that there was no change in Eisenhower's plan to visit Japan. At 3:35 p. m. June 10, James C. Hagerty, White House Press Secretary, arrived at the international airport in Tokyo in order to arrange the schedule of Eisenhower's visit. As Hagerty and Ambassador MacArthur boarded a car and passed through an underpass at the entrance of the airport, about 300 students besieged the car, shouting, "Go home, Hagerty!" About ten minutes later, the car was surrounded by an estimated 5,000 demonstrators who began stoning the car, some of the stones shattering the windows. A number of them got up on the roof of the car, while others cut the tires and tried to overturn the car by shaking it violently. About 400 police ran to the spot. The fight between demonstrators and police lasted for an hour. Finally, a United States Marine helicopter came down and rescued Hagerty and his party from the mob.

The general public and the press severely criticized such violence. However, Socialists defended it saying that, though this act was regrettable, if Hagerty had met the representatives of the People's Council Against the Treaty and had received at the airport their letter of petition concerning the cancellation of Eisenhower's visit, the incident would not have taken place.

Demonstrations continued. On June 11th, 200,000 demonstrators gathered in the square in front of the Diet Building, then marched to the American Embassy and the Headquarters of the Liberal-Democrat Party and Kishi's residence shouting, "Kishi resign!" "Oppose the Treaty!" "Dissolve the Diet!" "Don't come Ike!"

Hagarty left Japan on the evening of this day.

Christians' Attitudes toward the Treaty

The Christian Council Against the Japan-U. S. Security Treaty, consisting of seven pastors and twenty-five lay persons, issued its statement against the treaty, held rallies several times, and mobilized hundreds of Christians to join the demonstrations held under the leadership of the People's Council Against the Ratification of the treaty. Also in some local cities, pastors and Christians organized councils against the treaty and issued statements. No official statements of any church group except the statement issued by "The Research Institute on the Mission of the Church" of the United Church on December 7, 1959, have appeared.

The statement reads:

A called session of the Executive Committee of the United Church of Christ in Japan, held on July 14-15, committed to the Research Institute on the Mission of the Church the matter of study concerning the revision of the security pact between Japan and the United States of America. The Research Institute subsequently designated a special committee for careful study of the problem, resulting in the statement given below. This statement was adopted by the Research Institute on December 5 and was presented to the Standing Executive Committee of the United Church on December 7. The Standing Executive Committee received the statement and gave unanimous approval to its publication as a statement of the Research Institute.

It is our hope that as the churches throughout the nation stand in unity in the faith in our Lord they may likewise stand unified in relation to this political issue.

Statement

Confessing the lordship of Christ over the world, the church is commanded to live in every area of life in the world in a manner appropriate to her confession. In her effort to serve the world in obedience to Jesus Christ, the church brings to the matter of a just national existence a deep concern arising out of her dedication to justice in the world and to human rights as such justice and rights are revealed by her Lord. If the church today is to carry out faithfully even at the very center of political life her prophetic function as "watchman" and her socially purifying role as "salt of the earth," she cannot remain silent in relation to the issue which bears so heavily upon the destiny of the Japanese people—the revision of the Japanese-American Security Pact.

Therefore, concerning this issue we make the following statement :

I

As a nation dedicated to a new beginning at the point of repentance over the tragic error of irresponsible militarism of the past we resolved that the error should not be repeated again and led the world in the renunciation of war and in the steadfast resolve for peace. However, in accordance with the change in the international situation following the close of the war our country was obliged to establish as a product of the cold war the Japanese-American Security System. Today when the cry for the cessation of the cold war and for world peace is rising higher and higher among all nations and when there is an increasing emergence of an objective situation promoting it, it cannot but be said that the precipitate action of the government toward strengthening the rearmament of our country, toward setting up a hypothetical enemy and urging a military alliance with a specified country represents a backward course in the current of world affairs.

As a result, on the world scene we fear the increasing one-sidedness of Japan's international position, the doing of injury to the emergent movement in world affairs toward lessening of tension, and the blocking of friendly and peaceful relations with all nations. On the national scene we fear oppression in the area of national life and the reappearance of the violation of freedom which we experienced in the past.

II

We are also greatly concerned that as a result of the policy of our government we will not only evade the assumption of full responsibility for actions carried out in the past in relation to China and other countries, but will also facilitate the taking of a stand which will increasingly isolate Japan from other countries in Asia and again make her a threat to her neighboring countries.

III

Even though it is conceivable that the security system and the present revision may be profitable in terms of our economic existence, we categorically denounce the easy path of the enlarging of munitions industries and all related measures as means of securing Japan's economic prosperity.

We issue the above statement not from any political standpoint but as a decision in faith as we seek here and now to be obedient to our living Lord Jesus Christ.

Research Institute on the Mission of the Church
United Church of Christ in Japan, December 7, 1959

Of course the conservative and quietist elements of Protestant Christianity stood outside such movement. Among them there were voices in favour of Kishi and for the treaty, because they believe that America is a Christian country, that America's support had produced Japan's prosperity, and that U.S. forces in Japan had kept her in peace by defending her against the invasion of Communists. However, such voices were weak.

Another conspicuous move of Christians was that of Christian colleges and universities. On June 11, professors from most of the Christian colleges and universities in Tokyo issued a statement calling for the scrapping of the treaty, resignation of the Kishi Cabinet and dissolution of the Diet. Many students of these schools joined the demonstrations whenever they were held. It is noteworthy that not a few students of the International Christian University participated in demonstrations of their own held near the university.

Bloodshed on June 15

The demonstrations led by the People's Council achieved their apex on the evening of June 15. Zengakuren students surrounded the Diet, with police barricaded inside the grounds. At 5 p.m. the number of students reached 20,000. Suddenly about 200 rightists arrived at the spot in two trucks and auto-tricycles and rushed at full speed into the crowd, hitting the demonstrators with nail-studded oak-sticks, pulling girls down by the hair and hurting many students. According to what some spectators said, the police countenanced this for a while, refraining from intervention.

Enraged by this, the main current faction of Zengakuren noted for their fanatical action, rushed to the south side-gate of the Diet, broke down the gate, pulled out and burned five trucks which formed the barricade, tore down the barbed wire and surged into the compound of the Diet. By 7 p.m. 1500 students had entered the Diet in spite of being buffeted by fire hoses.

Five hundred policemen made violent attacks upon them, beating them with sticks and knocking them down. With their faces smeared with blood, the students fought with the police, throwing stones and bricks. A girl student of Tokyo University died as a result of being crushed and suffocated. About 1,000 persons were injured. The scene presented the spectacle of a riot.

Several Christians who joined the demonstrations at this time were injured, being hit by rightist gangsters with nail-studded sticks. The Christian Council Against the Treaty immediately issued a declaration, accusing the police for overlooking this violence.

Eisenhower Visit Postponed

On June 16 the Government held an emergency cabinet meeting to request the U. S. Government to postpone President Eisenhower's visit to Japan. The President regretfully accepted this decision of the Japanese Government.

At seven o'clock on June 17, Inejiro Asanuma, chairman of the Socialist Party, met Kishi and demanded his resignation and the dissolution of the Diet. Kishi agreed to the opinion that the political disturbances in Japan could be settled only by dissolving the Diet. However, Kishi did not say when he would dissolve the Diet, repeating his statement that he would never quit until the treaty was ratified.

The Finale

The 18th of June was the last day for the People's Council to stage demonstrations to check the approval of the treaty. The People's Council claimed that 330,000 demonstrators besieged the Diet on the evening of the 18th. Before besieging the Diet, they marched in good order along Ginza Street. The traffic was completely blocked off. However, passengers did not complain about it. The leader of each union or group participating in the demonstrations cried from their trucks: "Down with Kishi! Dissolve the Diet! Oppose the Treaty (Anpo Hantai)! The demonstrators roared after them in unison. The leaders asked the onlookers to do the same. Nobody did so. Only a few clapped their hands to encourage them. The spectacle showed that most people in Tokyo are not against what the demonstrators are against but stood as spectators of this parade.

The seige of the Diet continued till 2 o'clock a.m. of June 20. At midnight the treaty was automatically approved by the Upper House because 30 days had elapsed after it was passed by the Lower House. Premier Kishi and his colleagues stayed in the official residence near the Diet overnight, unable to leave because of the demonstrators. The People's Council declared that they would thenceforth apply increasing pressure upon the Kishi Government by demonstrations and general strikes.

The Features of the 1960 Political Crisis

The opinions of Japanese people concerning the treaty can be divided into six categories. In other words, if classified according to these categories, Japanese people are divided into six groups:

(a) Pro-treaty, i. e. Pro-America Group

Those who belong to this group support the present Government which maintains: Japan has brought forth such prosperity and has enjoyed peace and security up to now through the help and cooperation by the United States; that, as the existing treaty is somewhat unfavorable to Japan, it has been revised and the new treaty has replaced it, standing on the principle of equality and mutual defence; and that Japan must be a state belonging to the Free World and check the menace of Communist rule.

(b) Anti-Kish and Defending-Democracy Group

Among those who are pro-treaty and pro-America there are many persons who are against Premier Kishi, chiefly because of the so called undemocratic attitude which he displayed on May 20.

(c) Indifferent Group

There are many people who do not understand what the revision of the existing treaty means. Such people, being indifferent to what is going on, stand as spectators during this emergency.

(d) Anti-treaty and Pro-neutrality Group

Those who think that the treaty threatens to involve Japan in a possible war between the Communist states and Free states do not want the existing treaty to be revised. They wish the existing treaty to remain as it is and in due time be abolished. They also aspire after peace, trying to keep the Peace Constitution. This idea, they think, necessarily involves the neutrality of Japan.

A positive pattern of such thinking leads to the proposal that Japan must be a bridge between the two antagonizing big powers, making them friends.

A negative pattern of such thinking leads to the idea that Japan should have U. S. bases abolished and keep from making Soviet and Red China her imaginary enemy.

(e) Anti-treaty and Anti-America Group

There are many people among intellectuals and laborers who have anti-American feeling. This feeling drives them to oppose the treaty. Soviet's pressure upon Japan is indirect or invisible. However, American militarism directly and visibly influences Japanese people. Neglecting to consider the United States help to Japan financially and economically, some people sense only the pricks of militarism. This has caused anti-American feeling among the Japanese.

Also, dislike among the Japanese of America was caused by the abrupt change of the United States' policy towards Japan in 1950. In 1946 all the Japanese hailed the Peace Constitution. When General MacArthur said that Japan must be a Switzerland of the East, all the Japanese welcomed this saying. However, immediately after the Korean Incident broke out, President Truman said, "We must cross the bridge when we come to it," suggesting that the rearmament of Japan is inevitable. When Vice-President Nixon came to Japan in 1953, he declared that U.S. policy towards Japan after the war had been mistaken. However, intellectuals, labourers, and students did not think so. "MacArthur's policy was right," was their honest impression at hearing Nixon's words. Such a change of basic policy made America appear as a hypocrit. And, this made intellectuals hate to cooperate with America. This is one of the factors of the anti-treaty movement.

(f) Pro-Communist Group

Communists who intend to overturn the capitalistic system of Japan and to establish a Japan Soviet have supporters among laborers, students, and intellectuals. They are of course against the treaty.

The percentage each group occupies among the whole people of Japan is uncertain. However, surmising from the present situation, we can conclude that (a), (b) and

(d) groups occupy the greatest percentage, and (c) group comes next to these groups. Group (f) is a small one, because the number of Communists in Japan is estimated as less than 200,000 and the votes they obtained through past elections average less than 1,000,000.

Rather from Instinct than from Ideology

The basic causes of the anti-treaty demonstrations being staged with such frequency and on such large scale stem rather from instinct than from ideology. Most people of Japan have an abhorrence of war, because they experienced sufferings and tragedies through the Pacific War, having their kindred killed and their property destroyed.

The Japan-U. S. Security Treaty has given not a few people the impression that the treaty will involve the Japanese people in a war, because the treaty presupposes Soviet Russia and Red China to be an enemy. If once any incident takes place to ignite war, Japan will be attacked by Soviet missiles and will lose her people and land. This is what they vaguely sense. Also there is a general feeling among the Japanese people that through the treaty Japan is made a fortress for the defence of the United States rather than for herself.

In 1951 when the Japanese people trusted in America's absolute superiority in military power over the Soviet's, they did not oppose the Yoshida Cabinet's concluding the Japan-U. S. Security Treaty. This time the Kishi Cabinet has tried to improve the existing treaty in various points. Therefore one may well think that there is no reason for the people being opposed to the revision. However, the progress of cosmo-science in Russia and her huge propaganda through her experiments, testifying to her seeming superiority of military power over the United States, has given the Japanese people misgivings as to whether Japan can keep her security by solely depending upon America's military power. In the minds of the Japanese people, there is the consciousness or subconsciousness of the danger to life by depending solely upon the U.S.

Thus, abhorrence to war and misgivings about the dependence-on-America policy became the basic causes of the anti-treaty movement. Of course, Communists exerted some leadership through Sōhyō and Zengakuren in this campaign, but the main leadership was in the hands of Socialists who are not Communists.

Therefore, the energy that has driven this campaign on such a large scale to such vehemency is not ideology, but instinct or impulse—abhorrence of war and fear of Soviet military power. If the leaders of Japan and American statesmen overlook these basic factors, saying that the demonstrations were caused by the instigation of a small group of Communists, the consequences will be serious.

CHAPTER 2

THE RELIGIOUS SITUATION IN JAPAN IN 1960

Keitaro Nishimura

Preface, Part I: The SCAP Directive Concerning State Shinto

In order to comprehend the religious situation in Japan in 1960 it is necessary to review the developments that have taken place since the end of the Pacific War. This may be done in terms of the principal documents affecting the development, the first of which was the SCAP Directive concerning "the abolition of governmental sponsorship, support, perpetuation, control and dissemination of State Shinto," issued December 15, 1945. This is a long directive containing four articles and twenty-one paragraphs, from which I here quote four paragraphs:¹

Article 1. para. A: The sponsorship, support, perpetuation, control and dissemination of Shinto by the Japanese national, prefectural and local governments, or by public officials, subordinates, and employees acting in their official capacity are prohibited and will cease immediately.

Article 1. para. B: All financial support from public funds and all official affiliation with Shinto and Shinto shrines are prohibited and will cease immediately.

- (1) Support may be continued, however, to areas on which shrines are located.
- (2) Private financial support is condoned provided it is voluntary.¹

Article 1. para. D: The Religious Functions Order relating to the Grand Shrine of Ise and the Religious Order relating to state and other shrines will be annulled.

Article 1. para. E: The Shrine Board (Jingi-in) of the Ministry of Home Affairs will be abolished, and its present functions, duties, and administrative obligations will not be assumed by any other governmental or tax-supported agency.

In sum, this directive in one stroke did away with the stronghold and source of those oppressive measures which drove the Japanese people into aggressive militarism and excessive nationalism.

Preface, Part II: The New Constitution

The New Constitution of peace and democracy was proclaimed on November 3, 1946 and went into effect May 3, 1947. It contains eleven chapters and one hundred and three articles. I quote here those articles concerning religion and related human rights.²

From the Preface to the Constitution: Government is a sacred trust of the people, the authority for which is derived from the people, the powers of which are exercised by the representatives of the people, and the benefits of which are enjoyed by the people. This is a universal principle of mankind upon which this Constitution is founded. We reject and revoke all constitutions, laws, ordinances and rescripts in conflict herewith.¹

² The editor has again taken the liberty of quoting from the official English translation of the Constitution, as it appears in the section, "Translations and Official Documents," Contemporary Religions in Japan, Vol. 1, No. 1, March 1960, Tokyo, Japan, International Institute for the Study of Religions.

Article 11: The people shall not be prevented from enjoying any of the fundamental human rights. These fundamental human rights guaranteed to the people by this Constitution shall be conferred upon the people of this and future generations as eternal and inviolable rights.

Article 14: All of the people are equal under the law and there shall be no discrimination in political, economic or social relations because of race, creed, sex, social status or family origin.

Article 20: Freedom of religion is guaranteed to all. No religious organizations shall receive any privileges from the State, nor exercise any political authority.

No person shall be compelled to take part in any religious act, celebration, rite or practice.

The State and its organs shall refrain from religious education or any other religious activity.

We judge from these articles that according to the New Constitution of peace and democracy the provisions of the previously published directives against Shintoism were made into law; and the principle of the separation of religion and state, as well as the freedom of belief, have been firmly established. All religions in Japan, including shrines and State Shinto have been placed on fair and equal footing with respect to governmental administration of religious affairs.

Preface, Part III: The Religious Juridical Persons Law

This law was proclaimed and put into effect in April, 1951. It is fundamentally different from the Religious ¹ In my opinion, there is a definite religious sentiment underlying the Constitution. K.N.

Corporations Law enacted during wartime. The new Law is not concerned at all with the content of religion. Its purpose is to provide religious bodies or organizations with legal person in order to enable them to establish their material foundation. Put in an extreme way, one might say that the Law makes it possible for any religious body, however reputable, to gain approval in so far as it does not engage in activities contrary to public welfare and in so far as it satisfies the requirements of the Law. According to the general provisions of the Law, stated in Chapter I,

Article 1: This law aims at giving legal capacity to religious organizations in order to facilitate their owning establishments for worship and other properties, maintaining and operating them, and also carrying on business affairs and enterprises for the achievement of their purposes.

Sub-para. 2: Freedom of faith guaranteed in the Constitution must be respected in all phases of government. Therefore, *no provision in this Law shall be construed as restricting any individual, group or organization from disseminating teachings, observing ceremonies and functions, and conducting other religious acts on the basis of said guaranteed freedom.*¹

This Law manifestly places all religious bodies (including, of course, Ise, Yasukuni and other Shrines) in the same case under the law, whether the religion is "good" or "bad," without any discrimination whatsoever.

¹ Italics by the author. We have never known before a law which incorporated a basic principle of its interpretation in the body of the law, as this does. The inclusion of this principle of interpretation shows that the law is clearly predicated on the principle of freedom of belief. (The article is quoted from an official English translation; see, Religious Juridical Persons Law, Law #271 Revised July 3, 1952, Religious Affairs Section, Ministry of Education, pamphlet; editor)

Preface, Part IV: Religious Juridical Persons

There are three kinds of religious juridical persons. They may be roughly characterized as “independent,” or those with only local or parochial establishments; “semi-national,” or those with establishments wider than local but not national; and “national” or those whose establishments are nation-wide. The first two are under the jurisdiction of the prefectural governments; the third is under the jurisdiction of the Ministry of Education.

According to Ministry statistics of March 29, 1957, the number of organizations of the last category, including denominations, sects and religious federations, and the number of their unit establishments, including shrines, temples and churches, is as follows:

Faith	Number of National Organizations	Number of units
Shinto	142	99,264
Buddhist	170	74,937
Christian	36	2,778
Other	29	3,646

Preface, Part V: The All-Japan League of Religions

This League was formed in 1947 as an organization with no parallel in the world. It comprises five major religious associations representing every faith in Japan, namely, the All-Japan Buddhist Association, The Japan Association of Christian Groups, The Sect Shinto Association, The Shrine Shinto Association and the Association of New Religions. The Board of Directors and the Executive Officers are made up of one representative from each cooperating association, plus one person who is both a scholar of and experienced in religious affairs. The office of Chairman of the Board and Executive-Administrative Officer rotate among the five associations, changing each year, and both offices are filled by persons from the same association. The League maintains constant touch with the Religious Affairs Section of the Ministry of Education, in order that the actions of the government relating to religious affairs may accord with the purposes of the several religious associations. At the same time, the League functions as the spokesman of the religions vis-a-vis the government and society. Therefore, it has resulted in bringing about cooperation among all the religious bodies with respect to those matters in which religion has a special concern and unique contribution to make to national welfare; for example, the promotion of religious instruction and guidance of prisoners, the gathering of the remains of those who fell on the battlefields of the late war and establishing a memorial to them, endeavors for world peace, the reconstruction of public morality and manners, the promotion of fair elections, and "the new life movement."

Preface, Part VI: Conclusions from the Development Since 1945

The foregoing paragraphs give an outline of the changes that have taken place in the religious situation of Japan during the past fifteen years. In a word, the salient features of this development were "the abolition of national protection of shrines, the effecting of the freedom of belief and the separation of religion and state, and the realization of legal and administrative provisions that recognize equal status for all religions." This development was indicated in the beginning by the SCAP Directive concerning Shinto, then established in principle by the New Constitution and finally implemented by the Religious Juridical Persons Law. The All-Japan League of Religions has been concerned with keeping the activities of its cooperating associations in accord with the spirit and provisions of this Law.

The Situation in 1960

The first thing that strikes one's attention, in view of the history summarized above, is the movement to revive State Shinto. The body which suffered most drastically from the rapid change taking place after the late war was Shrine or State Shinto. It gained some lease on life through the operation of the Religious Juridical Persons Law, but suffered a severe financial setback, particularly in the case of shrines at the local or parochial level.

The movement for the revival of Shrine or State Shinto has been begun with careful preparation and planning. It aims to revive national spirit founded on love of fatherland and the gods of the fatherland, and to reawaken the faith symbolized by the belief in "Kamikaze" (divine protection) which was shattered by the declaration of the Emperor's humanity.

The spearhead of the movement are those forces which seek restoration of national protection of the Grand Shrine at Ise and the Yasukuni Shrine, memorial to the war-dead. The issue of the nationalization of Ise and Yasukuni Shrines, specifically, the issue of making the rites performed by the Emperor at Ise a national affair, was first raised by the Shrine Association. It was raised by their request for consideration of revision of the Religious Juridical Persons Law. The special committee of the Liberal-Democratic Party dealing with matters pertaining to this Law were about to take favorable action on this request when each of the three associations of Buddhist, Christian and New Religions groups, acting separately, entered their strong opposition. Furthermore, the Association of Bereaved Families, supporting the nationalization of Yasukuni Shrine, has long carried on a country-wide campaign to promote an appeal to the Diet, circulating petitions for signatures through its local chapters. It has also put pressure on local and national government, attempting especially to influence the Liberal-Democratic Party. In many localities, governmental and public agencies have been steadily contributing to the revival movement through actions resembling those taken during the war and before, that is, actions to maintain and support local shrines and their festivals.

The issue raised by the revival movement will dominate the religious situation through 1960 as the main concern of all the religious groups. The National Christian Council of Japan, at its Annual Assembly in March, passed a resolution expressing the firm opposition of this body to all movement to reinstitute Shrine Shinto. The resolution contains an appeal to the chairman of the special committee of the Liberal-Democratic Party on the Religious Juridical Persons Law to safeguard the provisions of the Law as well as the provisions of the Constitution. This resolution was made public.

II. THE CHRISTIAN MOVEMENT

CHAPTER 3

THE CHRISTIAN MOVEMENT IN GENERAL

Seiiche Wake

The Christian Movement in Japan, in 1959 and 1960, has been largely concerned with interdenominational activities related to the celebration of the Centennial of Protestant Mission in Japan and with beginning the new century. Among the activities were the E. Stanley Jones and the Lacour Missions, and the Osaka Crusade conducted by World Vision. The latter has created an interest in "the crusade" as a missionary approach. At the same time the more conservative or strictly evangelical groups have been active in special campaigns and certain organizational changes have come about as a result of the cooperation among them.

Many colorful events took place in connection with the Centenary celebrations in 1959. And the current year, 1960, has not yet produced anything to compare with them. The plans and program of the Centenary were finally placed in charge of a Central Committee under the chairmanship of The Rev. Ken Muto, Chairman of the National Christian Council, general sponsor of the Centennial. The Rev. Tsunetaro Miyakoda, General Secretary of the Japan Bible Society, was the executive officer of the Central Committee. There were twelve sub-committees, involving two hundred and nineteen

Bird's-eye view of The Doshisha, 1960

Joseph Hardy Neesima, founder of the Doshisha, was educated in Phillips Academy, Andover, Amherst College and Andover Theological Seminary in New England. He returned to Japan in 1874, founded the Doshisha with 8 students for the purpose of educating youth to live for God and Christian Brotherhood. Now 85 years later Doshisha has an enrollment of 20,000 students.

The Doshisha has eleven component parts :

1. Graduate School (co-educational)—Master's and Doctor's Course
2. University (co-educational)—1) Faculty of Theology, 2) Faculty of Letters, 3) Faculty of Law, 4) Faculty of Economics, 5) Faculty of Commerce 6) Faculty of Technology
3. Women's College of Liberal Arts—1) Department of English Literature, 2) Department of Music, 3) Department of Home Economics
4. Senior High School (Co-ed.)
5. Kori Senior High School (for Boys)
6. Girl's Senior High School
7. Night Commercial High School (Co-ed.)
8. Junior High School (Co-ed.)
9. Kori Junior High School (for Boys)
10. Girl's Junior High School
11. Kindergarten

From the beginning, the Doshisha has been closely related with the Congregational Christian Churches through the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions and also with the Evangelical United Brethren Church, Amherst College and Carleton College as well as the Rockefeller Foundation and the Harvard-Yenching Institute. Many of the Doshisha buildings are the results of donations generously given from abroad.

persons, and the administration of the Centennial events required a staff of thirty-seven. The several committees dealt with general affairs, program, arrangements, invitations, commendations, exhibition, public relations, reporting, music, preparing the history of the Centenary, special evangelical activities, and finance. The decision was made to hold the celebrations during the week of November 1-8, with the main Centennial Assembly on November 3rd. This Assembly was held at the Tokyo Metropolitan Gymnasium and attended by ten thousand Christians from all over Japan, their friends, and foreign guests. The Memorial Service of Worship opened at one o'clock and the sermon for the occasion was preached by The Rt. Rev. Michael Hinsuke Yashiro, Presiding Bishop of the Anglican-Episcopal Church in Japan and Vice-Chairman of the National Christian Council. The Rev. Keikichi Shirai, Moderator of the United Church of Christ, led the worship. At the Memorial Exercises which followed the Service, The Rev. Rokuro Yamauchi, Vice-chairman of the Council, was the chairman and official greetings were given by Dr. Muto and the leaders of other denominations. Eighty-two clergymen who had served the Church for over fifty years and thirty-seven who had served over forty years were given special commendation. In addition, three thousand three hundred and fourteen laymen each of whom had been "faithful servants" for fifty years or more were recognized and presented with a memorial gift. In the early evening of the 3rd of November a dinner party took place at the Japan Youth Hall, This was followed by the Centennial lectures, at the Metropolitan Gymnasium. They were delivered by a prominent layman and statesman, the Hon. Tokutomo Kitamura, and Dr. Zenta Watanabe, noted scholar and professor of the Bible. They spoke of the past hundred years and of the hopes for the future. This lecture program was preceded by music by the ABC Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Hidemaro Konoye.

There were a number of delegations from Japanese congregations abroad: The Rev. Shigeru Yuba heading a group of four from South America; Mr. Sohei Koda and forty others from Los Angeles; from the North American Association of Japanese Christians, Mr. Masashiro Komi and twenty-five others; Mr. Yoshimatsu Oyama and twelve others from Chicago; The Rev. Saburo Akamatsu and eight others from New York; Mr. Kiyoshi Noji and fifteen others from Seattle; and Mr. Masahide Hika with forty friends from Hawaii. Also forty-seven persons representing twenty-one world-wide Christian groups, beginning with the World Council of Churches, helped to share the joys of the Centenary.

Other events of the week of the Centenary included, memorial services in all local churches on Sunday November 1st; a Sunday School Pupils' Rally at the Hibiya Outdoor Music Amphitheater, that afternoon; a reception given by the Tokyo Municipal Government for overseas guests and delegates, at the Shinagawa Prince Hotel, on the afternoon of the 2nd; a dinner following, at the same place, which was sponsored by the National Christian Council to welcome the same group; an address by Dr. W.A. Visser t'Hooft, General Secretary of the W.C.C., at the Fujimicho Church, on the evening of the 2nd; a Youth Festival at the Metropolitan Gymnasium on the evening of the 4th; a sight-seeing trip to the historical sites of one hundred years of Protestant Mission in the Tokyo and Yokohama area, on November 5th; a sukiyaki party for the delegates from overseas Japanese congregations, followed by a discussion of the missionary responsibility of the Japanese Church, on the evening of the 5th; a special lecture and discussion meeting with Dr. Eberhard Müller, leader of the German Evangelical Academy, the morning of November 6th; the Centennial Assembly of the Women of the Church, that afternoon; a choral festival in which thirteen church and school choirs participated, the afternoon of November 7th at the Public Hall of Bunkyo Ward; a performance of The Messiah at the Sankei Hall, that evening; and, finally, services of thanksgiving at local churches on Sunday the 8th of November. Attendance at each of these events was large and enthusiastic. Notable among the addresses and program features were the talks of Dr. Charles Ransom of the International Missionary Council, and of Dr. Charles Iglehart, professor emeritus of Missions at Union Theological Seminary, New York City, and a former missionary in Japan, at the meeting on the evening of the 5th; the sermon preached by Miss Hatsune Hasegawa at the Women's Assembly and the recognition of several women for their long years of service. Honorary degrees were presented to Dr. Visser t'Hooft by St. Paul's University and Tokyo Theological University, and to Dr. M.A.C. Warren, General Secretary of the Church Missionary Society, by the former institution.

An exhibition of pictures, documents and objects related to the hundred years of mission was held, November 2-7, at the Christian Center on the Ginza, and was attended by over two thousand people. Taking advantage of the occasion of the Centenary, several groups held evangelical rallies and lecture meetings; among these was a meeting at the Toshima Ward Public Hall which was addressed by Mr. Kensaku Tazaki and the Rev. Juji Ogasawara, well-known for their missionary work in the city of Tokyo.

As a follow-up of the main celebrations of November 1-8, regional meetings in honor of the Centenary were held between late September and the middle of November.

The Kyoto branch of the National Christian Council sponsored a meeting on September 25th, at Doshisha University, which was attended by a thousand people. The Fukuoka Council of Churches held a similar meeting at the Fukuoka Sports Center on September 24th, attended by over eight hundred. There were more than a thousand at the meeting sponsored by the Nagasaki Council of Churches and held at the International Cultural Center. Kobe, Kanagawa-Yokohama, Hiroshima, Sendai, Matsuyama and Chiba Christian Councils likewise held such meetings with a total attendance of well over six thousand.

Centennial Activities of the Denominations

The conservative evangelical groups, not affiliated with the National Christian Council, conducted centennial exercises on May 1st, in Tokyo. The Church of Christ recognized the centenary on the occasion of a memorial assembly to celebrate its eighty-eighth year. At this time, the Church honored three pastors who had served for more than fifty years and one hundred and fifty-three laymen with over fifty years of faithful membership in the Church. Denominations affiliated with the Reformed tradition celebrated the Centenary with a lecture meeting at the Student Christian Center, Surugadai, Tokyo, on October 27th. Centenary programs of other groups will be reported elsewhere in this volume.

E. Stanley Jones' Campaign

Dr. E. Stanley Jones arrived in Japan on February 4, 1959, with Mrs. Mary Webster and Dr. Thomas Carruth, to contribute to the evangelical outreach of the Centennial year as part of the National Christian Council's program.

He was assisted for a time, also, by Dr. Akbhar Huqq, popular Indian evangelist. During the seventy-days of the Jones' campaign, evangelical meetings were held in forty-two cities; there were in all 1364 meetings drawing an attendance of 49,295, among whom 16,687 made their "decisions." Dr. Jones' campaign included several ashrams. This was his sixth visit to Japan.

Lacour Mission

Since 1954 the Lacour Mission has contributed to the cause of evangelism in Japan. It has come each summer as a team under the direction of Dr. Lawrence Lacour and established centers for evangelism in places where "mission" is difficult. 1959 marked the sixth visit of the Lacour team and the close of its program. The special committee of the United Church of Christ which has been in charge of the Lacour Mission for that Church's Department of General Evangelism, was discontinued as of March this year. The last year of the mission, coinciding with the year of the Centennial, involved the participation of forty-two persons, making 1959 the biggest operation since the Mission began. Up to the previous year centers had been established in twentythree places. In 1959 eleven more were begun, making a total of thirty-four of which eight are in the Tohoku, nine in the Kanto, two in the Chubu, and fifteen in the Kinki districts. The team arrived at Haneda on the 9th of July and after receiving orientation in Tokyo divided and went to the various centers where they worked until the end of August. During this period, from July 17 to August 1, there were three groups who observed the work, led by the Rev. Tomio Muto, the Rev. Teraji Hirayama and the Rev. Kiyoshi Tanimoto. Dr. Lacour visited and encouraged all of the centers with the Rev. Chuzo Yamada, Secretary of the Lacour Committee of the United Church of Christ.

The fruits of the six years of effort are seven centers which are self-supporting, fifteen centers that have built churches and parsonages and three others which are well along the way to building. The number of persons having membership in the centers as of the end of August 1959 was 1,404, and those preparing to become members 1,283. There have been 750 baptisms in the six years. Besides Dr. and Mrs. Lacour there have been altogether 181 persons come to Japan with the Lacour Mission, including mostly pastors and their wives. They have contributed their summer vacations as well as meeting all their own expenses.

World Vision

From May 12, to June 1, 1959, the Osaka Christian Crusade was conducted in The Osaka Festival Hall, said to be the biggest hall in the East, under the cooperative auspices of the Keihanshin District churches and World Vision. The main speaker of this great evangelical crusade was Dr. Bob Pearce. He was supported by a group of seven musicians from America. In order to insure the success of the crusade careful preparations were made months in advance, and the American layman, Bill Jones, conducted "invitation evangelism" and started prayer groups in many of the major centers of Japan. Beginning with Osaka, over a period of eight weeks, 1,800 "counselors" and 1,500 chorus group members were trained. During the crusade the latter formed "choral teams" to carry on evangelism in schools, factories and business offices. They were heard by 96,200 persons of whom 7,502 made their "decisions." In 1960, March 1-4, the Third International and Interdenominational Assembly of clergymen under World Vision auspices was held at Hakone, Kowaki-en. One thousand and six hundred clergy representing fifty-two groups (denominations) took part. Bob Pearce, Paul Reese, Richard Harbison, Bernard Ramm, Whitworth, Frank Warren, and Almin Geswine addressed the Assembly and led the seminars. Representatives of the National Christian Council and the Evangelical Lutheran Church told Dr. Bob Pearce, as the head of the Great Tokyo Crusade, that their respective groups were prepared to give their cooperation. This Great Crusade is planned for four weeks in 1961, from May 6 to June 5, at the Metropolitan Gymnasium. Dr. Pearce pledged an effort to gather 250,000 people to take part in the Crusade and to realize 20,000 enquirers.

The Fashion of Crusade Evangelism

The success of the Osaka Crusade has given us a suggestion for one method of conducting mass evangelism in Japan. This method of evangelism was tried out in several places during the late summer and early fall of 1959. For example, from September 4—26, the Japan Assembly of God held a three week evangelical crusade at the Toshima and Bunkyo Public Halls in Tokyo, led by Hal Herman, in the name of the Tokyo Crusade. And the result of this meeting was that 15,000 people were reached; one thousand and three hundred of them made their "decisions." The New Life Movement Cooperative Association followed this with a meeting from October 11—17, under the banner of "The Interdenominational Tokyo Crusade." (See other part of this article). Also, Dr. B. Morgan, a member of the Billy Graham team, was the leader and speaker at a crusade in Fukuoka from September 16 to October 4, held in the Fukuoka Sports Center. This crusade drew 25,000 people and realized 850 "decisions." The Rev. M. Hiramatsu, working as an individual from the first of the year, beginning in Okinawa and later in the Kanto, and Kansai areas, as well as The Rev. Hiroshi Honda of the Church of Jesus Christ, working in the Kinki and Kanto areas, had great success following the crusade method of mass evangelism.

The characteristics of the crusade method of evangelism are to establish a church in a given area, to foster the evangelical concern of church members already in that area and to open the way for the non-churched people of the area to become church members; also, as a way of follow-up, it proposes to train counselors to undertake the guidance of enquirers. Moreover, it involves the fullest use of radio, newspaper, TV and other mass media for forthright public relations and to challenge the world. In the actual programs or meetings to be conducted, it recommends seeking the cooperation of famous musicians, and choruses, for the purpose of making these programs as attractive as possible. In the case of the Osaka Crusade, the Crusade leaders were met at the airport and a colorful procession to their hotel was conducted. The "invitation evangelism" aimed at the influential people of the city, utilized a splendid meeting place and advertising space in public transportation facilities and busy sections of town. It made its appeal to the eyes and ears of the public through every available means. It made the churches responsible for getting out the audience, having each church take over the distribution of a certain number of admission tickets. The program included several famous foreign musicians, a great chorus, a well-known symphony orchestra, all of whom took part for the duration of the meetings and contributed greatly to the success of the Crusade.

This method has been criticized for requiring a much greater amount of money than the poor churches of Japan can afford. But in terms of the organization and management of effective evangelism the method has many aspects worth studying. How to adapt such a method to the circumstances of Japan is a task which is being given increasing attention.

CHAPTER 4

THE ECUMENICAL MOVEMENT IN JAPAN IN 1959

Tsunetaro Miyakoda

Centenary Celebration

The most memorable event in Japanese Protestant Circles in 1959 was the celebration of the Centenary of Mission which was held at the Tokyo Metropolitan Gymnasium, November 1-8. Protestant bodies in America and Europe, recognizing the significance of the Centenary sent representatives to honor the occasion. They joined with Japanese Christians in returning thanks to the Lord Who has blessed the establishment and growth of the Church in Japan.

The celebration was under the auspices of the National Christian Council of Japan. Many denominations and Christian bodies not affiliated with the Council cooperated; The N.C.C. extended an invitation to cooperate to all the Christian bodies in Japan.

Among the events of the celebration was a ceremony to honor 3,800 persons who have been "faithful servants" for over fifty years, and over 100 pastors, of all denominations who have served the Church for over forty years.

The representatives from abroad who came to share with Japanese Christians this joyful occasion had an opportunity to study the social and political situation and the Church's relation to it, as well as to enjoy sight-seeing and the Centenary program. On the other hand, Japanese Christians enjoyed the stimulation of the ecumenical fellowship and exchange with overseas delegates and guests. The greetings and messages of the guests at the various meetings on the Centenary program and at other times and places will long be remembered, with the epoch-making celebrations, as landmarks of the history of the Christian movement in Japan.

The Movement for Unity Among the Lutherans

Eleven Lutheran groups have been working in Japan. Many of them have been in Japan from before the war. The movement for unity among the Lutherans has been going on for some time and has reached the final stages of development with the discussions of the denominational Centenary leaders in 1959. Their decisions and the consummation of the long hoped for and diligently sought consummation of the effort to achieve unity came about with a conference of the parties concerned in May 1960.

Ecumenical Meetings Held in Japan

Another meeting of world-wide interest was the Centenary celebration of the Nippon Seikokai (Episcopal Church) which was held on April 7-9 at Tokyo Metropolitan Stadium and at St. Paul's University as well as other institutions of the Church. The Archbishop of Canterbury and Mrs. Fisher came from England, and Episcopal leaders from other branches of the Anglican Communion were invited to the Centenary. They also toured Japan and contributed to the growth of ecumenical spirit.

About the same time of the Episcopal celebration, the East Asia Y.M.C.A. leaders' Council was held in Tokyo and at the Gotemba Y.M.C.A. Summer House. There were about 70 delegates from Asian countries and also from Europe and America. The Tokyo meeting was an epoch-making gathering. The theme for discussion at the study conference was 'The approach to young men in a changing world and the cooperation with the churches in all countries.

Thirdly, there was the Bible Society Secretaries' Conference, in Tokyo May 1-8. Mr. Oliver Beguin the General Secretary of the United Bible Societies in London attended with the Asian and Canadian delegates. They held meetings also at Osaka and Kyoto with the representatives of various religions who were introduced by Mr. Thomsen of the Center for the Study of Religions. The main topics of the Asian Bible Society Secretaries' meeting were, the question of distribution of the Scriptures among Asian countries and the question of meeting the demand for Scriptures in Asia.

Ecumenical Meeting attended by Japanese Churchmen

The biggest meeting was the First East Asia Christian Conference (E.A.C.C.) held at Kuala Lumpur, Malaya, from April to May. The Rev. Takeshi Muto, Chairman of the N.C.C. and ten other delegates attended from Japan and enriched the fellowships with other Asian Church delegates. This contributed to the development of ecumenical spirit and to cooperation in the tasks confronting the Asian Churches.

The East Asia Bible Society Council was held at Singapore under the auspices of the United Bible Societies from May 27-June 2. Eighteen Bible Societies were represented at the meeting and the Rev. T. Miyakoda, General Secretary of the Japan Bible Society was delegated. There, for the first time, the real situation in Asia with respect to Bible Society Work was realized by the Asians and European delegates. And a new spirit cooperation was born.

The third meeting was the Asia Theological Education Conference held in Singapore in July. Dr. Hidenobu Kuwata of Tokyo Union Theological Seminary attended that meeting.

Youth Work Camp

These were held in Hong Kong and in the Philippines. To those camps Japan sent 7 students who came back filled with ecumenical responsibilities.

Laity and Youth Study Conference

This meeting was held in Hong Kong from December 31, 1959—January 25, 1960. The Rev. Fumio Kato, and Professor K. Kobayashi, of Aoyama Gakuin, attended with Dr. Schmitt of the Japan Christian Academy.

Mrs. Masako Takegami's Visit to Soviet

Mrs. Masako Takagami visited Soviet Russia on invitation of the Soviet Women's Association with four other women. She not only visited Christian churches and extended the greeting of Japan Christian women but also visited Chinese Christians at Peiping on their way back from the Soviet.

CHAPTER 5

CHRISTIAN LITERATURE DURING 1959

Howard Huff

To launch into a survey of all that is being accomplished by way of production and distribution of Christian literature in Japan is impracticable, because there is no single clearinghouse for such information. Numerous groups, some of them well equipped and strongly financed, are engaged in this work. In almost every instance, however, this work is carried on with little thought about duplication of facilities and consequent financial waste and un-stewardly use of talent. These circumstances may be expected to prevail so long as the impetus behind this surprisingly large literature output remains predominantly denominational.

The facilities for production are available in abundance. The era after the war was for 10 or more years characterized by inadequate equipment and depleted resources. Christian literature relied heavily on foreign capital and the emphasis was on production. During this period great caution was necessary not to overprice a book, because to do so was to lose your market amongst a poor people.

Today Christian literature is in a new phase. Publishers, although not affluent, have managed to develop capital resources of their own. By careful planning and editing they are able to operate on a strict commercial basis. And it is their desire to do so. Such enterprises are now understandably reluctant to tie up staff and productive capacity in books that will take years to meet their cost and require expensive storage space during that period. They seek books that meet a demand and can quickly make way for a new work or a reprint if such is warranted. Moreover the book must be attractive and commercially priced. Its worth will be adjudged low if it is priced low.

If production problems have been met with measurable success, this can not be said of distribution. Some groups of course meet, or evade, the distribution problem by working almost exclusively through churches, pastors and missionaries. Their distribution is only as good as their liaison with church representatives and Christian retail literature outlets. And churches tend to be lax in maintenance of up-to-date accounts.

Japan is a land that consumes unimaginably large quantities of literature. Most of this is retailed through countless bookstalls throughout Japan. However Christian publishers experience difficulty in getting their products into these bookstalls. One can see the problem: demand for Christian books and magazines is too small to justify a comprehensive display. What then shall be shown? The chances are that a poor choice is made. The books do not sell quickly and the distributor soon cuts the Christian line. On the other hand, a person looking for a good Christian book can expect but poor advice from a non-Christian bookseller.

The challenge of proper distribution, we may expect, will be the central task of Christian literature workers for the next five years or more. This has already been the decision of the Japan Commission on Christian Literature. A similar stance has been taken by the Japan Christian Literature Crusade. Others surely will follow this lead.

Literature Commission Reorganized

The Japan Commission on Christian Literature, one of three activity commissions of the National Christian Council in Japan, for 11 years has been engaged in a program of cooperative counsel and support of the business firms and agencies that carry out the indigenous Christian literature operation in Japan. Because of that support these publishing firms have in the main become financially independent. This fact of itself places the picture of Christian literature in Japan in a light quite different from that seen in most lands of the younger churches. It also testifies to the success of the literature commission's program on behalf of Christian literature.

The leader of the Japan Commission on Christian Literature during most of this significant period was the Rev. Mr. Norimichi Ebizawa, executive secretary from 1952 to March 1959. At that time, aware that the phase of productivity stimulation was fast ebbing away and convinced that his own talents lay in areas other than distribution and sales development, Mr. Ebizawa resigned from the position of executive secretary. On May 1, 1959 Mr. Ebizawa became director of the newly reorganized Christian Central Library in Tokyo.

The Board of Directors of the JCCL called a missionary, the Rev. Mr. Howard Huff, to the post of executive secretary on June 1, 1959. When this appointment was made there was mutual recognition that the period of transition in the Japanese Christian Literature movement and in the type of leadership exercised by the JCCL had created a special need. Mr. Huff was asked to guide the literature commission during this period of reorganization and change.

By September 1, Mr. Huff had announced the first step in the planned reorganization as adopted by the board of directors. Two new staff positions were set up, to be known as 'secretary' and 'financial secretary'. Mr. Kaname Takado, graduate of Tokyo Union Theological seminary and a layman with editorial experience in the Kyo Bun Kwan, was called to the position of secretary. Although called to a new position with broad potential responsibility, Mr. Takado's immediate concerns were supervision of editorial staff work on the large STANDARD DICTIONARY OF CHRISTIANITY, to be published in 1962; editing of KOBUN, monthly review of Christian literature and criticism; and inauguration and editing of THE MONTHLY CHRIST, general magazine for the home.

To the work of financial secretary came a man with six years' accountancy experience with the literature commission. The promotion of Mr. Shinobu Nakamura recognized his intimate understanding of commission business and his earnest devotion to the task of literature evangelism in Japan.

Along with the new administrative staff structure came also a strong impetus to remove the commission entirely from the publishing field. Actually for the past two or three years commission publication had been limited to jobs either too big (e.g., BIBLE CONCORDANCE, DICTIONARY OF CHRISTIANITY) or too small (e.g., evangelistic tracts) for the regular publishers to undertake. Arrangements to transfer one of the journals, THE JUNIOR TIMES, to a regular publisher have been completed and will take place in the fall of 1960. Further steps in this direction may be expected at appropriate times. The year 1959 also saw the literature commission assume editorial guidance of the 'National Christian Council Bulletin' on a temporary basis until March 1960.

Publications During 1959

Four years of strenuous labor came to fruition in the June publication of the large CONCORDANCE to the col-

loquial Bible. Although published by the Kyo Bun Kwan, the larger amount of editorial effort and financial backing came from the commission. In November, the 100 YEARS OF JAPANESE CHRISTIANITY IN PICTURES also was issued by the United Church Press after editorial work of more than a year by the commission.

Other works that appeared through commission effort included the first of a two volume anthology of Kierkegard's works translated by Masaru Otani and published by the Protestant Publishing Co. An important book in the Modern Christian Series by the YMCA Press was Sukeo Kitazawa's TOWARD UNDERSTANDING POLITICS. The United Church Press published THE CENTENIAL HISTORY OF CHRISTIANITY IN JAPAN by Akira Ebizawa, and JCCL itself put out CHRISTIAN AND WAR, a discussion between R. Niebuhr and Angus Dun and representatives of the historical 'Peace Churches'. Titles in the World Christian Books' series that appeared from the United Church Press during the year were CHRISTIANITY AND SCIENCE by C. E. Raven and translated by Yasutaro Owaku; READING THE BIBLE TODAY by D. T. Niles and translated by Hiroshi Shimmi; and BEGINNING FROM JERUSALEM by John Foster and translated by Naomichi Ashina.

MONTHLY CHRIST Receives Immediate Acclaim

The astounding scholarship that created a concordance in Japanese which can be compared only to the renowned Young's Concordance (with complete cross references to Hebrew and Greek originals) met with instantaneous approval. The first edition was sold out within two months and within a year of publication the entire second edition seemed likely to be gone.

Gratifying as such response is, the immediate acclaim accorded to the new family magazine, THE MONTHLY CHRIST, holds perhaps even greater evangelistic significance.

The audacious name 'Christ' was debated for some time before approval was finally granted. The name of course could become trite. However, after all points of view were heard, the risk was taken. The popular reaction was almost electrifying. The name, 'Christ', on the newsstands drew interest. Other magazines could not be recognized as unmistakably Christian either by cover or name. This magazine was different. It proclaimed Christ in the title, and the fresh cover pictures of the life of Jesus as portrayed in full color offset by the three dimensional art of Seiji Fujishiro constituted a powerful invitation to look inside to see what such an attractive journal was about.

That alone of course would not be enough to sell magazines. The other quality—that of editorial content—was supplied by the brilliant editorial work of Kaname Takado. From the December edition on he emphasized the finest available writing within a fourfold policy that featured:

- a) Easily understood content
- b) Gospel-centered, evangelistic content
- c) Focus on the witness to the life of faith
- d) Undergirding of the Christian mission by the use of fiction, essays, art and other cultural expressions.

Sales response has substantially increased each month since the magazine's appearance. Actual sales in eight months have climbed from 2,300 to 5,500. Yet even these figures do not tell the story. Nearly half of these magazines are sold to non-Christians. Small wonder that this vital new journal is being called 'Japan's Most Effective Evangelist!'

CHAPTER 6

CHRISTIAN SOCIAL WORK

Shiro Abe

It is difficult to give statistics on the number of Christian social work agencies in Japan, because there is no clear commonly accepted standard for judging which institutions should be called Christian. However, roughly speaking, there are five hundred Christian Protestant day nurseries and about one hundred and fifty other social work agencies.

Classifying the one hundred and fifty agencies by denominational relationship we see the following:

United Church (Kyodan)	70 organizations
Anglican-Episcopal	25
Lutheran	9
Baptist	6
Friends	5
Salvation Army	12
WCTU	8
Others	15

The seventy organizations of the Kyodan include, in all, about one hundred individual institutions. The Kyodan has about two hundred day nurseries, as well.

Dividing according to type of institution we find:

Childrens homes	30
Social work hospitals and clinics	16
Settlements and community centers	9
Widows and childrens homes	8
Foundling homes	7
Homes for aged	6
Homes for physically handicapped	2

Training schools for house mothers and nursery school teachers	2
Homes for blind	1
Homes for prostitutes	1
Reformatory schools	1
Others	17

In Japan the percentage of Christian social work institutions is decreasing, in relation to the number of public and other private institutions. Mainly this is true because of the large increase of public social work institutions. In 1910 such public institutions were only eight percent of the total but today they comprise 53% of the total of 13,448 of such agencies. In 1918 Christian agencies represented 18% of the total. Today they are not quite four percent.

The largest number of Christian institutions are childrens agencies (orphanages, foundling homes). These comprise 11% of the national total of such agencies.

It is not only true that the number of public agencies is increasing rapidly in comparison to the number of private agencies (including Christian), but, the amount of public funds being allotted to private agencies has greatly increased, reflecting clearly the assumption of public responsibility in relation to these agencies. In the early days, for instance, Christian childrens homes were begun by individuals or Christian organizations and supported by them. Nowadays, on the average, 75% of the support of such private agencies comes from public funds, and in some institutions it runs as high as 90%. Public money always brings a measure of public control, and this case is no exception, as the funds come with certain limitations and stipulations as to its use. It is not out of line to say that they are acting at the request of the government.

Standing in this situation Christian social work agencies is the relationship of the church and its witness to the social agency? These fundamental problems up to now have hardly been considered seriously, must less resolved clearly.

What is necessary is from both sides—the church theologically and the social agencies in terms of social work theory—is to study deeply the inseparable inter-relatedness which must exist between the mother church, which is sent in answer to the Grace of God to minister to the community and thus bears responsibility toward the social agency carrying out such ministry, and the social agency itself.

It is very good to note that during the past two or three years, and especially since 1959, both the churches and social work agencies have been carrying on a deep self-examination with regard to this gap and the role of social agencies in relation to the evangelistic task of the church. The feeling has grown that there must be at least a oneness in fellowship and has been expressed a concrete desire to come closer step by step.

Both the NCC and the United Church committees on evangelistic strategy have given close consideration to this problem and the council on cooperation of the United Church is taking concrete steps toward the integration of social work through closer relationships with the Christian Social Work Council. The Evangelism Study Institute of the United Church has chosen for its major study topic for 1960 the problem, "Christian Social Work". The future of social work faces many problems, but the important thing to note is that the year 1959 marks an important transition point. From this year this problem is being studied within the churches as the problem of the churches, and the attempt to solve it is being made from this standpoint.

1959 was the year of tremendous damage in Japan due to the typhoon in the Ise Bay area. The churches and church-related bodies carried out a large amount of relief activity. However, here I will touch only on the activities face two problems which must be considered thoughtfully, relating to evangelism and the church.

1. Most of the Christian agencies were founded by mission boards, individual Christians or Christian groups. Therefore, the direct, close relationship to the churches is very rare and weak. To put it otherwise the church is not exercising its necessary role as "mother" in the faith to these social agencies, which always face such heavy temptation and pressure to become increasingly secularized.

On the other hand the social agencies do not think of themselves usually as having the responsibility for carrying out a ministry on behalf of the churches. This is partly due of course to the fact that the churches do not give to these agencies the needed financial support and personnel. Among the personnel of Kyodan-related social agencies some 46.6% are Christian, and the financial support from the churches is practically nill. It is also true that often those who work in and support the social agencies are not themselves participating fully in and supporting the churches. In the future it is important that close cooperation between church and social agency be established both at the headquarters and the community levels.

2. The second major problem with regard to the relation of church and social agency, lies in the fact that on neither side is there adequate theological foundation to give rationale and undergirding to the work of social agencies. Even the consciousness of being a Christian social work is often not strong, or at least the meaning is not clear. It must be made clear what is the calling and role of Christian social work in relation to the evangelistic task of the church. Is social work a method of evangelism? Or is evangelism a part of social work? Is it the responsibility of the social agency to make its witness through the quiet deed of love in the community? What of the Japan Church World Service. JCWS distributed in this area approximately one million pounds of relief food and goods. (During 1959 JWCS received approximately 23,000,000 pounds of surplus agricultural products from America, about half of which were distributed to social work agencies.) Also, from Japan and nineteen other countries some ¥ 35,000,000 was allotted to relief work and supplies, in addition to some four thousand persons being mobilized to carry on the work. Out of these activities, the Nagoya Christian Social Center was brought to birth, with the cooperation of the following groups: Anglican-Episcopal, United Church, Lutherans, Southern Presbyterians, Reformed Church, YMCA, YWCA, and the Christian Medical Center. This is noteworthy as the first social work agency established under the churches' responsibility.

Another notable event of the year was the founding of a training school (Clarke Memorial College) for house mothers of children's institutions (child welfare work) within the Bott Memorial Center of the Christian Children's Fund. This is the first such training school in Japan.

The Christian Children's Fund in Japan now is receiving aid from American sponsors for some 3,680 children in fifty-eight related children's homes.

Among the other events of 1959 were:

a. The Japan Church World Service sponsored a conference of Christian social workers who are working in public and private institutions. In addition, the fourth conference of Christian social work students, sponsored also by JCWS, brought together students from twelve different colleges.

b. The Osaka district of the United Church sponsored the tenth retreat for Christian workers in social agencies, and the Christian Social Work League held its eighth training conference for Christian social workers. The Anglican-Episcopal Church and Lutheran church also held conferences for social workers.

c. Three delegates from Japan were sent to America to attend the White House Conference for Child Welfare, which is held every ten years. The three representatives from Japan, Mr. Y. Otani and two others, are all three earnest Protestant Christians.

d. Mrs. Katsue Obashi, a communicant of the Anglo-Episcopal Church and director of the Hakuaisha in Osaka, received the annual award of the Asahi Press given to the person of outstanding contribution to welfare or social work during that year. The previous year this important award went to Mr. Kensuke Mitsuda, another Protestant, who has been outstanding for his work with Lepers.

e. Miss Shizue Yoshimi, recently resigned from the Ministry of Health and Welfare, it was reported, has begun Christian work in Kanagawa Prefecture on behalf of the physically incapacitated.

As this book was ready to go to press, it was reported that the new Premier Ikeda had appointed Mrs. Masa Nakayama, the first woman to be appointed to a cabinet post in Japan's history, to head the Department of Health and Welfare. Mrs. Nakayama is a graduate of Kwassui Girls School in Nagasaki and Wellesley College in the United States and was baptized a Methodist before the War.

CHAPTER 7

YOUTH MOVEMENT IN JAPAN

Saburo Nagai

I wish in this article to mention two noteworthy youth movements. One of them is that of youth related to the church and the other is a movement involving young people in general.

A. The “Life and Mission of the Church” Project

This is a Study project which student Christian movements all over the world are at present carrying out. The World student Christian Federation (Geneva), which comprises the student Christian organizations of some 50 countries plans to promote this project during the five years from 1958 to to 1963. The student departments of the National Committee of the YMCA and the YWCA of Japan, taking the lead in this country, have appealed widely to the churches and the various student Christian organizations and, with their cooperation, are studying the life and mission of the Church in Japan. This project is being carried out in order to promote and renew the student Christian movement at the universities in Japan and to develop in positive fashion the “laity” movement in the circumstances and conditions under which men and women must fulfill their Christian vocations.

Chairman of the “Life and Mission” central committee is the Rev. Mr. Kazo Kitamori, professor of systematic theology at the Tokyo Union Theological Seminary. Under him are the committee members of the student departments of the YMCA and YWCA, the student evangelism workers of denominations such as the United Church of Christ in Japan, and the Anglican-Episcopal Church of Japan, the Evangelical Lutheran Church of Japan, the Evangelical Lutheran Church (USA), the Japan Baptist Union, the Japan Baptist Convention, the Japan Presbyterian Church, the Korean Church of Christ in Japan and the respective student Christian centers. All are participating in this challenging project.

In order to carry out this new project, a quarterly magazine, The Student Christian, is being published. Editorial chairman for this new publication is the Rev. Mr. Katsumi Matsumura, a professor at the Kwansei Gakuin University, near Kobe. The first issue was published in November, 1959, as a special number on "The Life and Mission of the Church." The second, a special issue on "The Witnessing Community," appeared in January, 1960. The third came off the press on May 1 and is devoted to studies on "The Renewal and Unity of the Church." This magazine is published by the National Committee of the YMCA of Japan. Mr. Yasutaro Owaku is editor.

B. The 6th National Youth Study Meeting of the Japan Youth Association Council

Date: Feb. 26—March 1, 1960

Place: Nihon Seinen Kan (Japan Youth Hall),
Tokyo

The largest youth organization in this country is the Japan Youth Association Council, which comprises the various prefectural youth associations. According to statistics compiled by the Ministry of Education, the number of local youth associations is 17,861 with a total membership of 1,868,277. This national youth study meeting has been held annually at the end of February since it was first inaugurated in 1955.

Subjects for discussion are first submitted by the various local youth associations. These are then transmitted to the national assembly by the study meetings of the youth associations previously held at the prefectural level. All the reports which the delegates have compiled and submitted to the national meeting, prior to the assembly date, are mimeographed and delivered to the participants. The group meetings then discuss the great issues which have been developed out of the subjects submitted by the local youth associations.

This year there were over 1,000 participants, including about 500 delegates and observers. These participants were divided into five groups and engaged in four days of serious discussion. The subjects which were handled reveal the types of problems confronted by contemporary Japanese youth, especially the rural village young people.

- Group I
 - 1) Life in Farming and Mountain Villages
 - 2) Life in the City; Small and Medium Industries
 - 3) Second and Third Sons Leaving Their Home Villages for Work Elsewhere; or Staying in the Villages but Doing Work on the Side Other Than Farming
- Group II
 - 1) Modernization of Paddy-field Rice Planting
 - 2) Combining Efforts to Improve Dry Field Farming
 - 3) Rationalization of Farm Management
 - 4) Girls' Lives and Work Outside the Home
 - 5) Problems of Agricultural Administration
- Group III
 - 1) Musical and Theatrical Activities
 - 2) Discussion Groups Formed around Problems Arising from:
 - a) Personal Reports on Living Conditions

- b) Ideas Found in Books
- 3) Educational Problems of Working Youth
- 4) Problems of Communal Study
- Group IV 1) Problems of Groups and Circles within the Youth Association
- 2) Youth Association Public Relations Activities
- 3) Organizational Autonomy
- 4) Girls' Activities within the Youth Association
- Group V 1) Democratization of Home and Community
- 2) Democratization of Town and Village
- 3) Youth Association Activities and National Politics

When members of youth associations from all over the country gather to discuss their common problems, difficulties arise because the need to divide into smaller groups prevents discussion of all problems by everyone. Nevertheless, it appears that this conference has given new impetus to community democratization as a solution to the problems young people now face. Some one has called this gathering the "Quite Human Revolution." A report on this annual study meeting is published each year by the Yomiuri Shimbun under the title, "Japan and Youth."

CHAPTER 8

WOMEN'S ACTIVITIES IN 1959

Ai Sasaki

How many Christian women are there in Japan? It is extremely difficult to figure out the real total. Although the large majority of church attendants are women, all of them are not necessarily baptized Christians. Also, there are many fine Christian women in a large number of churches in Japan which have not yet organized women's associations.

However, according to reports presented by the women's departments of the affiliated denominations, the National Christian Council's Women's Committee has figured out the number of Christian women in Japan, taking into account only the number of those who belong to the women's association of individual churches. The figures are as follows:

Name of Denomination	Number of Women Members
United Church of Christ	34,000
Anglican Episcopal Church	3,573
Baptist Convention	1,763
Evangelical Lutheran Church	698
Baptist Alliance	640
Total	49,674

Besides these, the Federation of Evangelical Women's Associations of the NCC-affiliated Korean Church in Japan, maintains a total of 637 members.

Let us now trace the steps of activities undertaken in 1959 by the women's departments of the NCC-affiliated denominations.

- (1) According to the report of the Special Committee on Women of the United Church of Christ's General Evangelism Committee, it established policies and means, and completed materials for more aggressive evangelistic activities; held a number of regional and local conferences; held a national meeting of the chairmen of the women's departments, of the district conferences; published the organ paper "Church Women," etc.

- (2) According to the news issued by the Anglican Episcopal Church's Auxillary Women's Society, it undertook the preparation of the Anglican Episcopal Church banner; decided to aid "Bethany Home," an old people's home; decided to grant scholarships to woman ministers, etc.
- (3) Federation of Woman's Associations of the Japan Evangelical Lutheran Church collected contributions for new church buildings as one of its "Stewardship Programs"; conducted evangelistic activities to lead families and neighbors to Christ; held bazaars to raise funds for establishing as many selfsupporting churches as possible, etc.
- (4) The Women's Department of the Japan Baptist Convention encouraged all its members to study the 12th chapter of the Epistle to the Romans as the year's common text; distributed the organ magazine; conducted a mutual aid program for the families of pastors; presented books to theological students; observed the World Baptist Women's Prayer Day, etc.
- (5) The Women's Department of the Japan Baptist Alliance urged its members to cultivate a spirit of stewardship by means of self-dedication to world evangelization, prayer life, Bible study, etc.; decided to hold women's meetings on a nation-wide scale, promote regional activities, publish periodicals, etc.; and contributed offerings collected during the World Prayer Week to evangelistic work at home as well as abroad. The contribution made during World Prayer

Week in 1959 totaled ¥ 2,000,000. The department is annually contributing scholarships to the Alliance-affiliated mission schools.

The Women's Committee of the National Christian Council is an interdenominationally-united organization of the women's departments of the NCC-affiliated denominations, and its main aim is to promote ecumenical activities. The most conspicuous regular activity of this committee is the "World Day of Prayer," which is annually observed by Christian woman all over the world on the first Friday of Lent. This activity is faithfully conducted in Japan at more than 30 Christian churches, schools and hospitals. The prayer program made out for Christian women the world over is translated into Japanese and also into braille for the blind. Copies of the same program published in English are also prepared for prayer meetings held jointly by many persons of different nationalities. Posters and guide pamphlets are widely distributed. In 1959, the day was observed on Feb. 13th with the theme "Lord, We Believe" (John 9: 38). Of the year's total contribution of ¥ 370,650, an amount of ¥ 250,000 was offered for the Japanese Protestant Centennial Commemorative Works which were conducted under the auspices of the National Christian Council. Of the total contributions collected during the fiscal year 1958, ¥ 159,000 was dedicated for relief of lepers in Okinawa and the same amount for relief refugees in Hong Kong.

The NCC received letters of heartfelt appreciation for these contributions from Rev. Kimoto of Airakuen, a leper colony in Okinawa, and also from Secretary Lee of the Hong Kong Christian Welfare and Relief Council.

Among the programs conducted jointly in 1959 by the women's departments of the NCC-affiliated denominations, one worthy of special mention was the women's meeting held on Nov. 6th as one of the commemorative programs of the Protestant Centenary in Japan. Once commissioned by the Central Committee of the Protestant Centenary Convention to hold this women's meeting, the Women's Committee of the NCC immediately enlisted 20 persons as preparation committee members representing the affiliated denominations and organizations.

On the meeting day, the Joishigakuin Auditorium in Tokyo was filled to capacity by two o'clock, the appointed time, with more than 2,000 women. Some 500 persons who couldn't take seats had only to give up and go home. The worship service was conducted with the utmost solemnity and the sermon delivered by Rev. Hatsune Hasegawa, a woman minister, was deeply impressive. A total amount of ¥ 86,000 collected at the meeting was contributed for flowers and paying visits to the graves of foreign missionaries who passed away in Japan after having devoted themselves to the service of the nation's evangelization. The second part of this meeting was for the purpose of expressing our gratitude to aged foreign missionaries and their wives, and Japanese women ministers who had established a firm basis of evangelistic work in Japan for more than 30 years. Those who were able to attend this meeting and were decked with floral decorations on the platform, included 57 foreigners and 49 Japanese persons. They seemed very happy and deeply moved. "Looking Back Upon the Traces of the Lord's Grace," a little dramatical performance depicting their significant merits in the past, was given after the ceremony. It deeply inspired the closely packed audience to such an extent that they made a resolution to enter upon the Second Century of Protestant activities with a firm determination. It is no exaggeration to say that this meeting was the consummation of the combined ecumenical activities of the women's departments of all the NCC-affiliated denominations.

THE PROBLEMS OF MINISTER TRAINING

Yasuji Ichikawa

Measures adopted by Protestant denominations in Japan for the training of a Christian ministry generally fall into two categories. One is training by theological schools, aiming at the education of young people as capable ministers for the next generation. The other is the re-education of ministers who are already engaged in the ministry, aiming at renewal of their energies by means of fresh insights and shared experience in a seminary atmosphere.

(1) Theological School Education

There are around 60 Christian theological schools and seminaries in Japan. Viewed from a legal perspective, some of these schools are ranked as colleges, some as lower level educational institutions. All must have government approval at the appropriate level if students are to be recognized for work completed according to national standards.

So far as theological curriculum is concerned, that of Tokyo Union Theological Seminary, affiliated with the United Church of Christ in Japan, may be representative. TUTS students finish courses in the humanities and sciences during their two years and complete specialized theological courses in the following four years. Completion of this six year course (or equivalent) leads to the degree of Master of Theology. The whole course may be completed within six years after high school. There is also a course leading to the Doctor of Theology degree.

The curricula of other theological schools with a four-year college system more or less conform to this general pattern. (Cf. Note I)

There are 200 students at TUTS, the largest seminary in Japan. Ten percent of these are women. The seminary faculty consists of 19 full-time members, including professors, assistant professors and instructors. In addition, there are 25 part-time instructors. Theological schools generally have one or more foreigners on the faculty.

In the case of Japan's first-class theological schools, most of the professors and assistant professors have done research work abroad. Many schools also endeavor to send capable graduates abroad for advanced study. Their terms abroad help to offset the academic inbreeding which afflicts most seminaries in this country.

Theological schools in Japan emphasize library development. Most of the books in these libraries are in a foreign language. There may even be a tendency to look with a certain condescension on theological works in the vernacular. TUTS, one of the best equipped, counts 35,000 books in its stacks.

Educators are struggling to raise the standards of Japanese theological schools. They hope to rise to the western level, and to exceed that attained by Buddhists and other religious circles in Japan. Their aim, of course, is to train ministers with sufficient capacity to assume leadership among all Japanese people.

Students of seminaries, like all other Japanese schools, are admitted only on examination. After enrollment, students receive not only academic training but also religious discipline through attendance at worship services, retreats, special prayer meetings, etc. In addition, every student is expected to serve as a loyal member of some church. If he is from out of town, he will be assigned to the church on a fieldwork basis. Schools also demand summer work of students. This gives opportunities for guided practical experience in ordinary church situations in the outlying area. Some schools have adopted internship systems. In such ways Japanese theological schools strive to give training in practical as well as theoretical aspects of the ministry.

Women students receive the same academic and practical training as male students. It is also desirable that they acquire some ability with musical instruments and, if possible, qualify as teachers of kindergarten or nursery school. The likelihood of finding positions of service in the churches increases with the number of auxiliary skills a woman possesses. Their value lies in being able to do what men will not or can not do.

In the United Church of Christ in Japan, seminary graduates may become ministers only after church examination covering the theological disciplines. Then, after three or more years of field experience in which all pastoral prerogatives except administration of the sacraments are permitted, the candidate for ordination may be fully installed only upon completion of yet another and more rigorous examination over the theological curriculum.

Many serious issues confront theological education in Japan. Among these, one is certainly the fact that we have more institutes for theological training than we are able adequately to support. This causes difficulty both for the schools and for the churches.

The number of Protestants in Japan stands at about 300,000, and there are approximately 60 theological schools. In the United Church alone the number of affiliated theological institutions comes to six in a denomination with about 180,000 members. Perhaps it is inevitable that the United Church should have such a high proportion of theological schools to membership because it is a union of many denominations. (Cf. Note #2)

However, even Tokyo Union Theological Seminary, largest and best publicized of United Church seminaries, experiences chronic financial difficulty because so few Japanese Christians actually support the school. The fact is that the United Church is unable to support its affiliated theological schools. It is contributions from churches abroad that make possible continuation of theological education in Japan.

Insufficient salaries for faculty is a direct ill effect of such uncertain financing. In order to make ends meet, highly qualified professors must teach at several different schools; and many do too much commercial writing because of economic pressure. Energy and time for research and the guidance of students within their own academic communities all too often are not available.

Students also take part of the brunt; they receive a minimum of scholarship aid. They must take time off from their studies in order to earn money for tuition and daily expenses. Some of them actually engage in manual labor! Schools also need improvements in their physical plants. Kitchens and dining halls often fall short of minimum standards for health.

A second problem is that, in spite of recent improvement, Christian education in Japanese churches still is at a very low level. Church music also is at a low ebb. Schools of theology in Japan have neither facilities nor courses to remedy this situation. Such lamentable conditions must be changed and the schools concerned must improve their departments of practical church work in order to serve the future church in this land.

The difference in the way of thinking between the younger and the older generations in Japan concerning life and the world is a third and most conspicuous post-war problem for the church. Even the moral sense of the youth seems to clash with that of the older people. For instance, the amount of their salary was almost irrelevant as a topic of conversation among older clergy; worldly pleasures such as drinking, smoking, dancing, etc., were—it was taken for granted—matters of abstinence. For the younger ministers and theological students, however, such abstemiousness seems hard to understand. This conflict between generations may be a world-wide trend. In any case, it confronts the church in Japan with a serious and perplexing internal problem with implications for theological education.

(2) Refresher Courses for Ministers

Provision of opportunities for educational refreshment for ministers already engaged in ministerial responsibilities of some duration is one of the more important programs being conducted by practically every denomination in Japan. These courses all have as their aim the qualitative improvement of the church's ministry.

In the case of the United Church, a summer seminar held each year becomes the occasion for ministerial refreshment, meditation and study. This seminar attracts scores of ministers from district conferences all over Japan. The theme of each year's seminar is decided in advance and is always a subject of immediate relevance to the life of the United Church. Recent topics have been "Mission and Ministry—Their Mutual Relationship" and "The Confession of Faith and the Formation of the Church."

The theological schools also like to hold their own school-centered summer institutes. These provide employment for school faculty and renew contacts with alumni. Also the district conferences of the churches have in some instances begun to hold district-wide training institutes for the clergy of the district.

Another aspect of this matter of advanced training for clergy is the foreign study and travel programs carried out by almost every denomination in Japan. These programs are made possible through the assistance of churches overseas. Ministers engaged in the constant and often lonely effort to bring Christ to Japan feel keenly the need of personal renewal through spiritual and intellectual fellowship. Refresher courses and overseas study therefore are truly precious opportunities for them and bring great dividends in terms of more fruitful ministry.

The Protestant Church in Japan has only a brief 100 years' history and the number of believers in this church is still very small. In spite of these facts the standard of Japanese theological education is by no means low. This is reflected in the number of Christian publications that is produced here. This number far exceeds that of most 'younger church' lands.

A certain number of Asian theological students also come to Japan for their education. It is expected that many students from Southeast Asian countries will be coming to Japan for study in the near future.

Japanese churches are grateful to the churches of the United States and Europe for the help which they give to theological education in Japan. In the same spirit the churches of Japan feel that they too would like to take some share of service in the broader field. Most likely such service can best be made to our sister churches here in East Asia.

CHRISTIAN SCHOOLS

Yoshimura Abe

1. Universities and Junior Colleges

Two universities have established new departments of law, Aoyama Gakuin and St. Paul's. Two new 4-year course universities have been established; one is Momoyama Gakuin University with a department of Economics; the other is The University of Animal Husbandry with a department of Agriculture. And one new junior college has been established at Shikoku Gakuin, offering English and Christian Studies.

The university branches of the Education Association of Christian Schools held their third conference at Atami, January 24-25, 1958, to discuss the subject, "The Problems Faced by Christian Schools." The Problems taken up in group study were a) the relation of Church and schools, b) the fellowship of teachers and students, and c) learning and faith. Again, January 23-24, 1959, they held the fourth conference at Arima Hotspring to discuss the question of "Christian Faith in the Modern Age." Professors Takenosuke Miyamoto of the Tokyo Theological University and Jisaburo Matsuki of Kansei Gakuin gave introductory addresses. A discussion followed on the question, "How should we lead students in Christian schools today?" The conclusions were, first, we need to establish an image of Christian personality. It was agreed, however, that such an image is not "fixed;" it is a subjective matter which has to be considered in the light of the "I-Thou" relationship. It was then concluded we should not stand in fear of any relationship except that to God; that understanding our relationship to God is the only true basis for respect of persons and for freedom. It follows that an aim of education is to educate persons with the power to resist those who would destroy this basis, with courage, love and intelligence. It was further concluded that education with this purpose and mission should be fulfilled not only in worship and courses in Christian studies but also through the influence and witness of professors who are committed to the Will of God and to working for His Kingdom, in the attitudes and acts of their daily life. In this respect, in particular, the Christian school would manifest its difference from the secular school. Finally, it was concluded that to realize such aims of education requires the education of the whole person, through dormitory life, through improvement of the program of general studies, through extra-curricular activities of "circle" groups, all aiming at the development of personality.

2. High and Junior High Schools

The division of the Education of Christian Schools concerned with high and junior high school education has made the home-room activities in Christian schools its basic research concern. It has surveyed and evaluated counseling in the home-room situation. For successive Friday nights, from October 13 through December 9, 1959, the Association sponsored a series of lectures on counseling given by Dr. Logan Fox who has had long experience in administering a mission school. The forty or more teachers who attended this lecture series have begun a study group on counseling in Christian schools.

3. Primary Schools

The most serious problem in the primary schools is that of course-leadership or the relation of guidance and instruction. As for Christian education in the primary schools, the conclusions of discussions sponsored by the Associations are the following: Christianity cannot be related directly to the subjects taught. But earnestness with respect to the problems of faith and a basically healthy attitude towards learning can be supported and encouraged. Direct teaching of the Bible is not recommended; rather attention should be drawn to those things in the curriculum and entire life of the school which witness to Christian truth, or which can turn the attention of the child to Christianity. In particular, in the matter of science education, the mistake of giving the child an exaggerated notion of the importance of science is to be avoided; on the contrary, the child should come to understand that a true appreciation of the place and function of science depends upon a grasp of Christian truth. These conclusions represent the opinion of the majority of those engaged in teaching in Christian primary schools today.

THE ANGLICAN EPISCOPAL CHURCH

The Nippon Seikokai (the Anglican-Episcopal Church in Japan) celebrated its Centennial, April 7-9, with a program of events that took place in the Tokyo Metropolitan Gymnasium and St. Paul's University. The Seikokai also cooperated in the Centenary celebration held under the auspices of the National Christian Council, during the week of November 1-8.

The Seikokai Centennial opened with a service of worship on the afternoon of April 7. There was a colorful procession of over 300 clergy, lay representatives of organizations in the Church and clerical representatives of other branches of the Anglican Communion. The congregation consisted of over 7000 churchmen, friends and guests, including former missionaries who returned for the occasion on the invitation of the house of Bishops and the National Council of the Church. The service was followed by a dinner reception to honor the overseas guests. And in the evening, also at the Metropolitan Gymnasium, Centennial Lectures were given by the Rt. Rev. Peter Sadajiro Yanagihara, Bishop of Osaka, and President Masutoshi Matsushita of St. Paul's University.

The Rt. Rev. Arthur Lichtenberger, Presiding Bishop of the American Church, delivered the sermon at the opening service of worship, assuring the Church in Japan of the will of the other branches of the Anglican Communion to continue assistance to the Seikokai as it may be needed and desired. Bishop Lichtenberger declared, "We share, so far as we can, your concerns and look forward with you in hope."

The Centenary Celebration of the Holy Communion was observed on the morning of April 8, with the Most Rev. Michael Hinsuke Yashiro, Presiding Bishop of the Seikokai as celebrant and His Grace, the Most Rev. Geoffrey Francis Fisher, Archbishop of Canterbury, as sermoner. The Archbishop took as his text, "Fear not, little flock." After the Celebration, the assembly had luncheon in the Gymnasium, and in the afternoon there were the Centennial exercises at which congratulatory messages were given by representatives of the Church of England, Canada and Australia, and the Church in the Philippines, as well as by former missionaries, by representatives of the Government of Japan, of the diplomatic corps and other Japanese Christian groups.

Other events on the Centenary program, held at Tucker Hall, St. Paul, University, were a panel discussion on the evening of April 8, of the subject, "Looking Ahead to the Next Hundred Years;" and the "festival evening" featuring entertainment by groups from each of the ten dioceses of the Seikokai, April 9.

The Archbishop and Mrs. Fisher represented the Church of England; the Church of England in Canada, the Church of England in Australia and the Episcopal Church in the Philippines were represented by the Rt. Rev. Ivor Norris, the Most Rev. Reginald Halse and Miss Helen Boyle, respectively. And the Protestant Episcopal Church in the USA was officially represented by Bishop Lichtenberger. The heads of the major branches of the Anglican Communion in England, Canada, Australia and the United States joined in a Declaration which read, in part, "We pledge ourselves to consult and work together with you in the future as in the past as partners and brothers in Christ.” Mrs. Arthur Sherman and Mrs. Britton Osler who head the work among the Church’s women in the United States and Canada, brought the greetings of American and Canadian Church women to the women of the Seikokai assembled in special session at Holy Trinity Church on the morning of April 10.

The 26th General Synod (triennial) of the Nippon Seikokai was held at St. Paul’s University, from April 9-11. The Synod elected new chairmen to head the departments of the Church’s National Council, ratified the revision of the Book of Common Prayer, and “resolved to carry out the new vision and great task facing us in the second century of missionary work in this country.” During the period of the Synod, time was taken out to attend the conferring of honorary degrees by St. Paul’s on Archbishop Fisher and Bishop Lichtenberger, to enjoy a luncheon given by the National Council at St. Paul’s University Refectory and a reception by St. Luke’s Hospital.

The Year 1959, in addition to the planning and carrying out of the Centennial program, saw the Seikokai engaged in a careful review by each department of the Church of its activities, and study undertaken to determine the specification for the Church’s approach to the task of mission in the years ahead. CHAPTER 11

THE JAPAN EVANGELICAL LUTHERAN

The Japan Evangelical Lutheran Church took great joy in celebrating the One Hundredth Anniversary of Protestantism in Japan together with the Christian Churches of other denominations. We recalled with thanksgiving how God had used our predecessors in the faith to carry out His plan for the salvation of Japan, and how they had endured persecution and deprivation to build the scaffolding for the future evangelistic enterprise in Japan.

As the Evangelical Lutheran Church in Japan we reflected once again on the teachings of the Reformer Martin Luther, and pondered on how the Church should speak regarding the problems of the new century. For some years past this has been in the process, but this year the work has begun to take definite form. This consists in the editing and publishing of a series of Luther's writings. The first step is the plan to publish a twelve-volume set of Luther's works, but that is not to be the end. Since the first set of twelve volumes is to be the foundation for succeeding publications, the most important works of the various periods of the Reformer's life were selected to be included in it. The first volume is to be published in 1960, and for this purpose the support and cooperation of a team of Luther scholars in Japan has been engaged.

Long term plans for the evangelistic outreach of the church are being made by the evangelistic department, and are being seriously studied at all assemblies of the church. The evangelistic efforts of the past were reflected upon at the retreat of all J.E.LC. pastors held last November, and those of the future were considered in their various aspects. The methods used up until now have been imported methods, and this contribution is not to be discounted. But henceforth new, creative schemes must be thought out and courageously put into practice. Several good suggestions along this line were made at the retreat.

The educational institutions of the Lutheran Church, namely Kyushu Gakuin Boys' High School, and the Japan Lutheran Theological Seminary are working diligently at the task entrusted to them, and are making plans for future progress. Plans for new buildings have been made for Kyushu Gakuin, and the board of directors is making efforts to achieve this goal. Kyushu Jogakuin has purchased land adjoining the school property, and the new dining hall and extension of the library have been completed at the seminary.

In the realm of social work, Jiai En in Kyushu, Tokyo and Chiba Bethany Homes, and others are meeting the needs of orphans, widows and their children, and old people.

New bases for evangelistic work in the form of chapels and parsonages have been built, and with their aid the work is being developed, particularly the education of children. All departments of the church are working diligently.

The pastors of the Japan Lutheran Church number 93, missionaries 79. There are 110 congregations, and last year 590 members were received by baptism. It is imperative that greater efforts be made in the future.

Emphasis has been placed on the practice of stewardship and on the training of laymen who go out as witnesses to the Gospel. In three locations in Japan camps will soon be established. More than ten thousand tsubo of land have been purchased at Aso, ten thousand in Kansai, and an appropriate site is being sought in the Kanto. It is the hope that buildings will be completed on these camp sites during 1960, and with them the realization of our plans for laymen's training.

We expect great things during the second century of Protestantism in Japan from the sons of this new era who are being sent out from the seminary. Also, all Lutheran Churches in Japan are striving toward unity, and when this is realized a fresh start will be made in the work of the church.

With the words of St. Paul to the Romans, "The righteous shall live by faith," as the sign on its flag, the Lutheran Church is moving forward.

CHAPTER 12

THE JAPAN BAPTIST CONVENTION

The interest of Southern Baptists from the U.S.A. in missions to Japan dates from before the Civil War. A missionary couple, the John Rohrsers, actually were appointed but were lost at sea enroute to Japan. The unsettled conditions following that war delayed further appointments until 1889, when two missionary couples arrived. Other missionaries soon followed.

The Japan Mission of the Southern Baptists was formally organized in 1900. This took place on January 23 at Fukuoka City on the island of Kyushu, where all Southern Baptist work was then located and where it is still strongest. The first self-supporting church came into being at Moji in 1912.

Southern Baptist efforts in the educational field are also located on Kyushu. Seinan Gakuin, a boys' school, was opened at Fukuoka in 1916. Today it has in its component groups a total of nearly 4,000 students. The institution includes a boys' middle and high school, and a coeducational university, which also has a junior college level training school for women and a theological faculty. Since 1922 there has also been a Seinan Jogakuin school for girls. It is located at Kokura City in Kyushu and offers course work from the middle school level through junior college. The total number of students approaches 2,000.

Southern Baptists are enthusiastic evangelists. Their finest energies have from the beginning been devoted to the work of establishing Baptist Churches related to the Southern Baptist Convention. They have developed two schools and, since 1954, have supported a hospital in Kyoto known as the Japan Baptist Hospital. It now has a 90 bed capacity and employs a staff of 128, all of whom are Christian. The only other social work is the Good Will Center in Tobato City in Kyushu. Its operation is of the community center type and focuses in a kindergarten which enrolls 120. It also is intensely evangelistic.

This emphasis upon evangelism and church development is reflected in the functional organization of the Japan Baptist Convention. In contrast to other Christian groups with longstanding missions in this land, the Japan Baptist Convention is not organized around the three divisions of church-evangelism, educational institutions and social work. Its threefold organization is actually two-thirds church centered. There is the Evangelism Division, the Education-Service Division, and the Institutions Division.

These first two departments would perhaps be better titled the church-extension division and the church-development division. The present program of the first division includes pioneer evangelism, radio evangelism, a five year plan to double the number of Baptist churches, special evangelistic crusades and a Billy Graham campaign. Under 'foreign missions' is subsumed a mission to Okinawa with one Japanese and one American couple, and a mission to people of Japanese language in Brazil is being studied.

The second division deals neither with school education nor social service. (Such work is lumped together with the Amagi Baptist Assembly grounds under the Institutions Division.) Rather this second division is the coordinating center for church development which includes the church school department, the training union department, the women's department, the youth and student department, the publication department and the Jordan Press. These last two are equivalent to an editorial and publication-distribution department of the Japan Baptist Convention.

The effectiveness of this church-centered policy of denominational evangelism may be inferred from the following facts. Prewar Southern Baptist membership in Japan was 2700. In 1946 this was less than 500. Missionaries from the U.S. began to arrive by late 1946. By April 1947 representatives of the 16 remaining Baptist churches related to the Southern Baptist Convention had voted to leave the United Church of Christ and form the Japan Baptist Convention. By April, 1960, 74 churches had been established and there were 100 evangelistic stations throughout Japan. The goal is for 140 churches by 1964, terminal date of the Five Year Advance Program. Current membership is 13,100—the fifth largest non-Roman group of Christians in Japan. Moreover the number of Japanese ministers and missionaries is almost in balance with 121 pastors and 123 missionaries. Aggressive evangelism, relatively free of institutional commitments, has resulted in remarkable denominational growth over the past 13 years.

This past year, 1959, was the 70th anniversary of the arrival in Japan of Southern Baptist missionaries in 1889. The Japan Baptist Convention celebrated the occasion in its assembly in Tokyo the last week in October, with many Southern Baptist leaders from the U.S.A. in attendance. Among these were Dr. Ramsey Pollard, pastor of the Broadway Baptist Church, Knoxville, Tenn., and president of the Southern Baptist Convention, Dr. E.H. Westmoreland, pastor of the South Main Baptist Church, Houston, Texas, Dr. H.H. Hobbs, pastor of First Baptist Church, Oklahoma City, Oklahoma, and well-known radio evangelist, and Dr. T. B. Matson, professor of Christian Ethics at Southwestern Baptist Seminary, Ft. Worth, Texas.

For Southern Baptists this denominational anniversary was of greater importance than participation with other Protestant groups in the National Christian Council's celebration of the centenary of Protestant evangelism in Japan, November 1-7, 1959. This sectarian attitude on the part of the visiting foreigners was noted with considerable restraint in the 'Bulletin' of the National Christian Council for December 15, 1959.

“The Japan Baptist Convention, in affiliation with the Southern Baptist Convention in the U.S., observed its 70th anniversary during the week immediately prior to the NCC Centennial. However, the NCC was unsuccessful in getting a representative from among the distinguished Southern Baptist leaders from abroad to participate in the centennial meetings, although representatives from the Japanese churches and missionaries did take part.”

The “winds of change” that move so compellingly toward the future may yet providentially guide the churches of the Japanese Baptist Convention into closer brotherhood with their fellow Christians in this country. That shining possibility seems to be indicated by the subordinate clause in the final sentence quoted above.

JAPAN BAPTIST UNION

The Japan Baptist Union is one of Japan's older Christian bodies although its present organization is somewhat new. Its oldest church, the Yokohama Baptist Church, was formed on March 2, 1873, as the first expression of the work of the American Baptist Foreign Mission Society in Japan. The present group was reorganized on January 31, 1958 and consists of some 3,537 members in 44 churches and preaching places scattered from the islands of the Inland Sea to northern Tohoku. Since last year the Baptist Union has launched a five year evangelism plan in cooperation with the American Baptist Foreign Mission society. The Baptist Union was admitted as a cooperating denomination of the NCC in March, 1959. Among its related institutions are Kanto Gakuin University in Yokohama, Soshin Girls School in Yokohama, Hinomoto Girls School in Himeji, Shokei Girls School in Sendai, Mead Christian center in Osaka, Kuji Christian Center and Dairying School in Iwate Prefecture, Fukagawa Christian Center in Tokyo and the Waseda Hoshien, a student center at Waseda University. Missionaries working in the JBU are those sent to Japan by the American Baptist Foreign Mission Society and also those of the Baptist Union of Sweden. (B. L. Hinchman)

THE KOREAN CHRISTIAN CHURCH IN JAPAN

The Korean Christian Church in Japan, like any part of Christ's people set in the midst of this world, has its times of testing, its areas of challenge, its moments of misgivings. But by the grace of God there is much in the life and witness of the Church throughout the land for which to be thankful.

Koreans in Japan generally are under severe, deteriorating pressures of various kinds—economic, social, political, ideological. There is the realization therefore, that the Church must press tirelessly forward just to stand still. Yet in the midst of difficult times God raises up for Himself able witnesses both for the ministry and for the lay edge of the Church. There is a seminary student for every two ordained pastors. High School and Student Movements hold study conferences and rallies with maturity and zeal. There are evidences of a new relationship between Koreans living in Japan and Japanese in certain Christian programs. They are rare but real. Not the least of our blessings is the fellowship which the Gospel creates among our people, old and young.

From Sapporo in Hokkaido to Kumamoto in Kyushu there are 52 congregations with 1402 baptized members, plus adherents and seekers. The Church is served by 21 ordained pastors, 12 evangelists and Bible women, and 11 seminary students. It is a constituent member of the N.C.C. of Japan. Historically the Korean Church has maintained a close relationship with the Presbyterian Church in Canada, and presently two missionaries from that Church serve in Industrial Evangelism, and Student Workprojects of the Church here. Being a part of the World Presbyterian Alliance, the Korean Church was represented at the quadrennial assembly in Brazil during the summer of '59, by the Moderator, Rev. Yoon Tai Oh. Visiting Canada on his return Rev. Oh was honoured with a D.D. degree from Presbyterian College in McGill University in Montreal.

The central task before the leaders and people of the Korean Church at present is the difficult but crucial task of evangelism. Because of the aforementioned social and political and economic hopelessness which prevails among the Korean people here, they are prime targets for ideologies. In Japan Communism is able to rally sizeable resources for work among Koreans—money, many sponsored schools, and trained personnel devoted to 'evangelism'. However the resources of even a small Church of Jesus Christ are greater. They must be claimed and carried by devoted men and women to Koreans and to all who will receive Him throughout this land.

CHAPTER 15

THE UNITED CHURCH OF CHRIST IN JAPAN DURING 1959—1960

The Centennial Year

In considering the activities of the past year from mid-1959 to mid-1960 attention is drawn first to the fact that 1959 was the year of centennial in the Protestant Christian world in Japan. This year marked the close of the first century of Protestant Christian mission and the beginning of the second.

The year 1959 brought to an end the special centennial program of evangelism within the United Church which had been conducted during the past several years leading up to the anniversary year. The slogan "All Out Evangelism" was featured and an active program was carried out in each local church according to local needs and challenges. At the same time from April 1 until November 1, when the Centennial celebration activities began, a special prayer service was held daily at twelve o'clock noon in the General Headquarters of the United Church. The service was attended by Headquarters staff members and members of all committees which happened to be meeting at the time of the services. Each day seven churches and preaching stations were lifted up for prayer, following which a prayer remembrance card signed by the people in attendance for the day was sent to each church. During this period 1,572 churches and preaching stations of the United Church throughout the country, together with related schools and social institutions, were remembered in prayer. Letters indicate that the prayer plan has been a source of strength throughout the churches.

Growing Overseas Relationships

A significant event during the past year was the overseas tour of the present moderator of the United Church, the Rev. Keikichi Shirai. In the course of the three month tour from June to September Mr. Shirai visited churches bearing ties with the United Church on the two American continents. Mr. Shirai's visit included attendance at the Eleventh General Assembly of the Evangelical and Reformed Church in the United States from July 1 to July 5, followed by attendance at the Second General Assembly of the United Church of Christ in the United States. Moderator Shirai was also present at the Eighteenth Convention of the World Federation of Presbyterian and Reformed Churches held in late July and early August in Sao Paulo, Brazil. He then visited Japanese churches in various parts of South America.

In line with the growing sense of responsibility on the part of the United Church in relation to the world-wide mission of the Church of Christ, the church's Overseas Evangelism Committee and its program are constantly increasing in scope. During the past year additional steps in overseas cooperative evangelism were taken in the sending to the Allahabad Agricultural Institute in India of Mr. and Mrs. Kenzo Yoshida for agricultural evangelism, and of Dr. and Mrs. Kazuo Saikawa to Taiwan in response to the request from the Taiwan Leprosy Relief Association. Arrangements are now being completed to send to the United Church of Christ in Thailand the Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Kiyose Koyama for service on the faculty of the official seminary of the church.

In March, 1960, a fellowship deputation of three ministers, Rev. Yasuji Ichikawa, Rev. Ryoichi Kato and Rev. Charles Germany, went from the United Church in Japan to spend a week with the United Church in Okinawa.

In April, 1960, Rev. Isamu Omura, Vice-Moderator of the United Church, went to the United States to attend the regular quadrennial General Conference of The Methodist Church. Mr. Omura returned to Japan by way of Germany, where further conversations were held with officials of the Church of Union in that country concerning closer fraternal ties.

Lacour Evangelism Team Final Visit

A team of 42 pastors from North America arrived in Japan on July 3 to spend two months in evangelistic activities with pioneer churches in various parts of the country. The Lacour Special Centennial Evangelism Program has brought to Japan such teams of pastors each summer for the past five years. The year 1959, as the centennial year, brought to a close this challenging program of cooperative evangelism under the leadership of the Rev. and Mrs. Lawrence Lacour. The United Church is studying now, in cooperation with the North American Interboard Committee for Christian Work in Japan, the details of the continuation of this form of special summer cooperative evangelism.

A farewell evening music and lecture program was held on September 2, 1959, before the departure of the Lacour team. At this time deep appreciation was expressed to Dr. and Mrs. Lacour and to the members of the team.

Ise Bay Typhoon

In September this tragic typhoon struck Japan, leaving in its wake an unprecedented number of typhoon casualties and property damage. Many churches related to the United Church suffered damage and two buildings were largely destroyed. Follow-up Christian service has been carried on in cooperation with the NCC and other agencies by the Social Committee and the Youth Committee of the United Church.

Pretestant Centennial Celebrations

For the United Church of Christ November 4, 1959, was the special day within the week of centennial activities conducted by the National Christian Council in Japan. On this day the United Church held a special anniversary Convocation on the Mission of the Church at the Tokyo Municipal Gymnasium attended by 7,500 delegates from all parts of the country and from many fraternal churches overseas. On that occasion the following Proclamation was adopted by all present as reflecting the mind of the United Church as it enters the second century of Protestant Christian work:

Proclamation

We stand in the anniversary year of the first century of Protestant Christian mission in this land. In the beginning, the door of Christian mission was opened by missionaries from abroad. Through the clear insight of those who have gone before us the first church—the Japan Christian Church—was established as non-denominational. For many years this early ideal lay submerged, but by God's gracious providence, the prayers of our forerunners of the first period were realized through the formation of the United Church of Christ in Japan in the year 1941. Thus, under one confession of faith, we now can look upon a unity in Christ unknown in the past.

As we review the past one hundred years, we offer reverent thanks for the evangelistic efforts of our predecessors in the faith, made in the midst of suffering and hardship. At the same time, we bow in contrition because the work of Christian mission in our day falls so far short of that to which our Lord calls us.

We who during the past five years have labored together in the program of evangelism preparing for this one hundredth anniversary look now to the second century, resolving by the grace of God to move forward with even greater vision. As laymen we seek the keen sense of being witnesses of our Lord scattered abroad in society, as ministers of the church we dedicate ourselves afresh to the purpose that, within the characteristic spiritual conditions and traditions of Japan, the Gospel may penetrate the lives of our countrymen at every level.

We remember that a century ago the Gospel came to us from across the seas. In this second century, we press steadfastly toward more adequate fulfillment of our task in carrying the Gospel to other lands and toward becoming a church that truly bears its share in the universal calling to Christian mission in the world.

Come, Holy Spirit come and send us forth that in the coming one-hundred years this, Thy calling, may be fulfilled.

Future Program of the Church

The feeling is deep and widespread in the United Church that the second century calls for a review and restatement of the church's fundamental policy in its mission. Toward the end of formulating such a policy preparation was begun last fall for a carefully organized conference to study the church and its mission. A selected group of one hundred representing the different activities and areas of the church met for three days in February, 1960, at Amagisanso. In reflection it was felt that this conference gave concern primarily to an evaluation of past programs and method, together with a searching evaluation of the organizational aspects of the life of the church. The church is looking now toward a second conference designed to seek the will of God concerning concrete and immediate steps in the program of the church for the century.

CHAPTER 16

TRENDS IN ACTIVITIES OF THE NON NCC-RELATED DENOMINATIONS

Seiichi Wake

Denominations outside the National Christian Council and which, strictly speaking, belong to no cooperative missionary body but have over ten thousand members, are The Japan Christian Church and the Church of the Spirit of Christ. Also there are the Japan Gospel Evangelical Assembly of groups centering in the Holiness Church, together with their cooperative evangelical agencies such as the New Life Cooperative Society. And there is the Japan Protestant Bible Faith League which encompasses conservative faith groups. Likewise affiliated with no other group are some of the Lutheran denominations, Conservative Baptists, and groups which are federated in the home country such as the Federation of Swedish Missions.

Cooperative Activities of the Evangelical Denominations

The Japan Gospel Assembly Evangelical Association is organized among nine evangelical churches sharing a broad standpoint. This Association cooperated with the National Christian Council in its Centennial program while it also took part in the Centenary Memorial Biblical Faith Movement of the conservative faith groups. The Assembly Association took the following actions at its general assembly in May 1959. 1) It decided to participate in the Asia Conference of The World Gospel Evangelical Assembly to be held in Hongkong in September 1960. 2)

It decided to hold a "holy meeting" and missionary conference.

In May, 1959, the Assembly Association invited Dr. Clyde Taylor, Director of the Foreign Missions Department of the World Gospel Evangelical Assembly, for a conference on the principles of cooperation. Dr. Taylor was the speaker at special evangelical meetings of the churches belonging to the Assembly Association. The persons chosen to represent the Assembly Association at the coming Asia Conference are the Rev. Mr. Kazuo Kanda (Free Methodist), the Rev. Mr. Hiroshi Kitagawa (Nazarene), and the Rev. Mr. Eiichi Hoshino (Japan Gospel Assembly).

The Assembly in the past was organized on the basis of voluntary participation by individuals, but at the January 1960 meeting of the Board of Trustees, the problem of changing the organization was taken up and a movement for reforming the regulations pertaining to affiliation with the Assembly on the part of denominational units has been started. The New Life Cooperative Association is one of the principal groups in the Japan Gospel Assembly, and it is an agency for cooperation in evangelism in which The Salvation Army and several other organizations take part. At the Annual Meeting in January 1959, in preparation for the Centennial activities and as measures to strengthen the Association, it was decided to enlarge the Central Committee from seven to twelve members and to organize into twelve regional groups with responsible persons at the head of each. A Centenary Crusade was planned in accord with its evangelical policy, to take place between the spring and the fall of 1959, The Crusade was planned to include three hundred evangelical meetings on the basis of three each in one hundred large centers, to be led by ten special lecturers. The meetings were attended by about 50,000 persons and 7,000 of them made their "decisions."

In addition, a centennial assembly was held at the Tokyo Chapel Center on May 1, 1959, to memorialize the landing of the Rev. John Liggins at Nagasaki as the first Protestant missionary (Anglican-Episcopal) to arrive in Japan. And on July 7, 1959, a meeting for the Promotion of Goodwill Between Japan and Philippines was held at Hibiya Hall in Tokyo at which two representatives of the Philippine churches were welcomed. In October, 11-16, the Canadian evangelist, Dr. Oswald Smith, and Dr. Timothy S. Dzao, head of the Hongkong World Spiritual Mission, gave evangelical addresses at the Toshima, Shinagawa, Suginami and Arakawa Public Halls. On October 17, the Supra-Denominational Tokyo Crusade was opened at the Kuramae Arena, for a week, during which 12,000 people attended and 1,000 made their "decisions." As a result of the Crusade a New Century Crusade was planned as a special evangelical effort to begin the next hundred years of mission and to be carried on for three years.

The New Century Crusade was organized in October with Hiroshi Kitagawa (Nazarene) and Fred Jarvis (Gospel Assembly) as chairmen, Goro Mori (Seikyodan) as vice-chairman, Eiichi Hoshino (Gospel Assembly) as general secretary; and as trustees, Tameichiro Kanai (the Japan Christian Assembly), Akiji Kurumada (Holiness), Kiyoma Yumiyama (Japan Assembly), Keiichi Hiraide (Japan Gospel Christians) and Independent. Besides the numbers representing the Gospel groups there are also members from the Nihon Kirisuto Kyodan, (United Church of Christ) and from the former Gospel faction within the Baptist Federation, among the trustees.

The Crusade began its activity with a meeting, January 1, 1959, at the Arakawa Hall in Kyobashi, Tokyo. Other evangelical meetings followed early in May at Nagoya, Kyoto, Kumamoto, Okayama, and Sapporo, at which Timothy Dzao spoke; on May 20th, a large evangelical assembly at Hibiya Hall; from the middle to the end of October, large meetings at the Kyoritsu Hall and the Tokyo Metropolitan Gymnasium, which were addressed by Dr. Oswald Smith. The Crusade budgeted three million yen for including the meetings and publishing The New Century, a magazine for promotion and public relations, as well as to send Mr. Shoji Kameya on an evangelical tour of South-East Asia.

Cooperative Activities Among the Conservative Groups

With the cooperation of the 1317 clergy and 800 missionaries who share the same principle of Biblical faith, The Centenary Bible Faith Movement was begun with a meeting from the 5th to the 11th of October at the Japan Youth Hall in Tokyo at which Roger Nichols, Edward Young, Dr. Oswald Smith and other conservative theologians and ministers from the United States and Canada were the speakers. This was followed up with meetings in Nagoya, Kyoto, Kobe, Fukuoka, Hiroshima and Okayama, until the 26th of October. The program at the Tokyo meeting included seminars for ministers and theological students during the day, at which 800 attended; and at night, rallies attended by over 1500 people each evening.

The committee in charge of the Bible Faith Movement met at the end of February this year, at Atami, for a general conference. At this meeting the proposal was made to continue the Movement permanently and the Protestant Bible Faith League was established. Twenty groups that hold a conservative faith as well as individuals of the United Church of Christ, the Baptist Federation and the Seikokai make up the charter membership of the League. The officers are, chairman of the general conference of the League, Niyo Tsutada (Immanuel General Evangelical Group); secretary, Jiro Togawa (independent) ; chairman of the executive committee, Takao Joba (Japan Reformed Christian) ; and secretary of the executive committee, Misao Amari (J. B. B. F.). Its proposed activities include 1) emphasis of Biblical faith ; 2) attention to the "shrine problem ;" 3) translation of the Bible ; 4) development of education based on Biblicism ; 5) overseas missionary activity ; and 6) strengthening the lay movement.

Concerning the "shrine problem," the general conference of the League, in February, passed a resolution to be presented to the Diet opposing the nationalization of the Grand Shrine at Ise ; the resolution was sent to the Diet in April. In regard to Bible translation, it was decided to make a careful study of the present colloquial translation and in the near future to begin work on a new translation, based on a proper text, that will make clearer the Biblical faith.

Activities of Other Groups

One Lutheran group maintains the Seibunsha Publishing Company to carry out a program of evangelization through publications. And it also has The Lutheran Hour, a radio program. The conservative Baptists have begun a cooperative training course and maintain The Baptist News as an organ for communication among them. The Japan Christian Association, at its 9th Annual Conference in October 1959, reached the following decisions: 1) to establish a cooperative church finance agency ; 2) to establish a welfare fund for the clergy ; 3) to organize an all Japan woman's auxiliary. And the Association has reorganized its theological school. It has chosen The Rev. Mr. Harume Fujita to be its dean and has entirely renewed its teaching staff.

The Church of the Soul of Jesus has rapidly increased its membership through aggressive evangelism, and has established many churches and missions in Okinawa. In recent years it has increased annually from 5000 to 8000; according to statistics of December 1959, its total membership was 36,500.

As for the other major denominations, the Japan Church League has established memorial churches in Gifu, Chigasaki and Kanazawa as part of its Centennial movement. The Japan Free Methodist Church has decided to build several churches, five to be built by the Japanese and seven to be built by the missionaries. This program is part of a five year plan of advance, beginning in 1959. The Japan Holiness Church in cooperation with the Oriental Mission Society is presently engaged in "concentration" evangelism, using tents. The Japan Gospel Church started pioneer evangelism in ten centers from the spring of 1959.

The extreme evangelical churches, especially the Holiness groups founded by Bishop Juji Nakada hope to reorganize, but have not been able to do so yet. The Baptist churches have a similar hope but not yet made any progress to this end. The movement for unity among the Lutheran denominations is about to be realized excepting a small group of them. In regard to cooperation in evangelism, the will and intention to achieve interdenominational participation are growing. And on the way to achieving this cooperation, the churches are showing a unified witness vis-a-vis society and share a great expectation for the development of influence in the second century of mission in Japan.

IV. REPORTS

THE NCC IN 1959

The year 1959, marking the celebration of the Centennial of Protestant missions, was a most memorable year for the Protestant Christian Movement. With full cooperation of all groups affiliated with the Council, the Council-sponsored Centenary was organized and conducted for the purpose of recognizing the achievements of the past one hundred years and to turn the thoughts of the churches to the tasks of the coming century. This two-fold intention and spirit pervaded all the activities.

E. Stanley Jones Mission

Important among the events planned in connection with the Centennial was the E. Stanley Jones Mission. Dr. Jones conducted a mission in Japan soon after the war, among the ashes of destruction, so to speak, and has returned every other year since, to make a singular contribution to the recovery of this country through the preaching of the Gospel. He has always come at his own expense. In 1959 he was ably assisted by the well-known Indian evangelist, Dr. Akbhar Haqq, the American Methodist, Dr. Thomas Carruth, and Mrs. Mary Webster, an English lady evangelist who has had considerable influence in her own land. For two months, February to April, the Jones Mission conducted six ashrams and a great many mass meetings. The Jones' campaign for 1959 was under the direction of a cooperative committee under National

The first step in modern sales promotion is to assemble data in the form of marketing research reports and statistical analyses of the market. On this foundation is established the overall advertising campaign plan. The ideas, the "gimmicks," all contribute to making the individual ad fulfil its task, but the research comes first.

Dentsu, today the 6th largest advertising agency in the world and the largest anywhere outside the United States, is the only marketing organization in Japan operating with the full benefit of a comprehensive research staff. The difference? It shows up in the results—in the ratio of sales to advertising costs.

Christian Council auspices, and was included in the special program of Centennial events. Especially noteworthy in the campaign was the promotion of "prayer-life", an essential emphasis for the spiritual health and the binding together of Japanese Christians and providing the "power" for the advance of the Church into the second century. Meetings to promote the "prayer-life movement" were conducted in Osaka, Takamatsu, Fukuoka, Sendai, Sapporo and Tokyo where ashrams were held. Dr. Carruth gave special leadership at the ashrams in the practice of the life of prayer. Under the inspiration and new direction of the ashram experience a "prayer-group movement" was begun. This is now under the auspices of a committee of the Council organized for the purpose, which has begun the publication of a monthly bulletin entitled, Prayer Companions. The major intent of the movement is to promote prayer groups of four to five persons in as many churches as possible, to meet at least once a month and to pray for the Church, for its pastors and members, for "enquirers," and for the power of witness. The movement is a most hopeful result of the Jones' Mission.

Also, the Jones' Mission conducted mass meetings in forty-two cities and towns. One of the heartening aspects of this campaign of mass evangelism was the cooperation shown by many groups, together with the realization of the importance, the challenge and the problems of evangelism in a pagan society. In two places, Shinjo and Tsuruoka of the Tohoku district, complete cooperation of the Christian groups was achieved and the campaign was highly successful. Altogether, there were 1,344 meetings, attended by a total of 49,295 persons, of whom 16,687 made "decisions". The total expense of the campaign, excluding the expenses of the Jones' team and their Japanese associates, was 1,267,527 YEN, this was covered by offerings taken at the meetings.

All-Japan Conference on Evangelism

The All-Japan Conference on Evangelism in 1959 was also included in the program of Centennial events. This was the third conference of its kind. It was held September 16—18, at the Amagi-Sanso Baptist Center in Izu, and brought together over 100 persons representing the United Church of Christ, the Nippon Seikokai, the Evangelical Lutheran Church, the Baptist League, the Baptist Federation and the Association of Korean Churches. The representatives were persons responsible for the program of evangelism in each of these groups. The First and Second All-Japan Conferences on Evangelism held in 1957 had met around the theme, "Mission and Unity". The same theme was adopted for the Third Conference with special emphasis to be given to consideration of the advance of missions in Japan in the coming century.

A considerable part of the discussion at the Conference centered around the interim report of the NCC Committee on the Basic Policy of Mission. Dean Shuen Kuwada of the Union Theological Seminary, Professor Yoshimitsu Endo of the Central Theological Seminary of the Seikokai, Professor Masao Takenaka of the Theological Faculty of Doshisha University, all members of the Committee, reported on "Theology of Evangelism," "Christianity and Japanese Culture," "Society and the Problem of the Laity," respectively. In addition, there were two other addresses, one on "The Social Environment of Christianity in Japan," by Professor Yoshiaki Izaka of the Gakushuin University, and the other on "The Strategy of Evangelism in the Church in Japan," by the Rev. Kozo Kashiwai, pastor of the Senzoku Church of the United Church of Christ. The theme and concerns of this conference are of the most lively interest to the Church. And it is a matter for grateful rejoicing that those with the greatest responsibility for the conduct of evangelism should have had this opportunity for cooperative discussion and ecumenical fellowship.

The Centennial Celebration

Preparations for this great event began in the year 1952 with the decision of the 5th Annual Meeting of the National Christian Council to hold a Centennial in 1959. From that time planning began with the objective of holding the major Centenary program in the week of November 1—8, 1959. This week was the climax of years of effort and careful cooperation among all bodies affiliated with the Council. It was early decided the celebration should not end with a festival, but should be marked by thanksgiving for the planting and nurturing, under God's Providence, of evangelical Christianity in Japan; it should include reflection upon the one hundred years of accomplishment, and it should lead to the renewal of the will and the common sense of responsibility for the carrying on of missions in Japan in the years to come. Such was the fundamental spirit which governed the centennial celebration.

The various events on the program of the Centenary week carried out this spirit. And to honor and give inspiration for the occasion many guests came from abroad, representing world ecumenical organizations and the boards of many groups that send missionaries to Japan. Among the guests were Dr. Charles Ranson of the International Missionary Council, Dr. W. A. Visser't Hooft, General Secretary of the World Council of Churches, Dr. M. A. C. Warren, General Secretary of the Church Missionary Society of England, Dr. Bovenkirk and Dr. Brumbaugh of the United States, Rev. Rapelli of the Finnish Lutheran Church, Rev. Charoon Wichaidist, General Secretary of the Thai National Council of Churches, and many others. There were a large number of former missionaries to Japan who returned to take part in the celebrations. Among these were Dr. Charles W. Iglehart and Dr. Paul S. Mayer. Groups of churchmen representing Japanese congregations in North and South America and Hawaii also took part, giving great joy to their fellow Christians in this country whose privilege it was to welcome them.

The Centenary program opened with services of thanksgiving in the churches of the land, on Sunday morning, November 1st. At two o'clock on November 1, over 5000 pupils gathered at the Hibiya out-door arena for a Sunday School Pupils Rally which was addressed by Dr. Rapelli. On November 2, the Governor of Tokyo gave a reception at the Shinagawa Prince Hotel, in the afternoon. And Dr. Vissert' Hooft delivered an address at the Fujimi-cho Church, on "Our Common Christian Calling," in the evening. The principal gatherings of the Centenary took place on November 3, in the Memorial Service of Worship at 1:00 P.M., followed by the Centennial Assembly, both at the Tokyo Metropolitan Gymnasium. The Rt. Rev. Michael Hinsuke Yashiro, Presiding Bishop of the Nippon Seikokai and a vice-chairman of the National Christian Council, preached the Centenary sermon. At the Assembly following, greetings were given, first, on behalf of the NCC, by the Council Chairman, the Rev. Ken Muto; then by Dr. Ranson, Bishop A. J. Moore of the American Methodist Church, and Canon Warren. Messages of Congratulation from Prime Minister Kishi and the Minister of Education were read.

A most memorable part of the Assembly was the recognition of those pastors who had served the Church in Japan for over fifty years as well as of those who had been faithful members of the Church for over fifty years.

There were 3,444 persons in the latter group who received a specially prepared gift of plates inscribed with the legend, "Unto the ends of the earth!" These faithful elders were a living witness to the courage of Christian conviction and to the Providence of God which sustained them through the years. One thought of the difficulties that have beset them and others in the first hundred years of missions and gave thanks for the inspiration of the labors of countless missionaries from abroad and the hosts of Japanese pastors and laymen who have gone before.

The evening of the 3rd of November, the Centennial Lectures were delivered at the Sendagaya Metropolitan Gymnasium, by the Hon. Tokutaro Kitamura, statesman and devoted layman, and by Dr. Zenta Watanabe, renowned scholar of the Bible and Pastor emeritus of the Ginza Church. Dr. Watanabe spoke of the lessons of the past hundred years and of the meaning of responsible evangelism to come. November 4, again in the evening at the Gymnasium, the Centennial Youth Rally was held. On the following evening, a challenge to the Japanese Church to take responsibility for overseas evangelism was presented at a gathering at the Yodobashi Church. One sensed a great determination forming to rise to the challenge. On the afternoon of November 6, the women of the Church held their Centennial Rally. And on the 7th, there was a concourse of Christian choral groups in the afternoon at the Bunkyo Ward Public Hall and a performance of the Messiah in the evening at the Sankei Hall. The program of events of the Centenary came to a close on Sunday, November 8, with memorial lecture meetings in many of the churches.

Regional assemblies marking the celebration of the hundredth anniversary of the coming of Protestant missions were held in Sendai, Yokohama, Kyoto, Kobe, Hiroshima, Nagasaki, Fukuoka, and Matsuyama, during November.

One project, the outcome of which will continue to excite interest and keep alive the essential spirit of the Centennial, was the selection and marking of twenty-four historical sites in connection with the march of missions through the first hundred years. Their history is briefly told, in a specially prepared and illustrated pamphlet, Kirisutokyo Yucarino Chi (Historical Sites of Christian Mission).

(Kaname Tsukahara)

THE BIBLE SOCIETY IN 1959

The Protestant Centenary was also the occasion of the centenary of the Japanese Bible. The first task missionaries engaged in after landing on Japanese soil was that of translating the Bible into Japanese. Dr. J. C. Hepburn was the first chairman of this project. In 1888 the complete Bungotai Bible was translated into stately, classical Japanese. In 1955 the Bible was translated into Kogotai (colloquial style) which has been welcomed by great numbers because of its readability. The extensive circulation of the Scriptures in 1959 may be a forerunner of Christian advance.

(1) Circulation in 1959

The Japan Bible Society circulated nearly two million copies of the Scriptures in 1959. Various Scriptures were distributed as follows:

(2) Bible Circulation through Secular Book Outlets

There are approximately 10,000 bookstores in Japan. Most of these are secular and non-Christian. Hitherto those secular book sellers have been accustomed to look upon Bibles as purely Christian books, to be distributed only by churches and by the very few Christian bookstores. The ordinary bookstore has been reluctant to handle Bibles.

The situation following World War II opened the way for the people to read the Bible. Thus they asked their secular bookstores for Bibles and thus awakened the bookstores to the sales potential in scriptures. The Japan Bible Society, once it grasped the situation, intensified its efforts to contact the secular bookstores to help them in handling the Scriptures. The Bible Vans (bookmobiles) also have helped familiarize people with the Bible. Also since 1959 the various areas of Japan have been assigned to the branches and depots of the Bible society as follows, and systematic distribution has been carried out through these centers:

	Branch Depot	Areas of Work
Tokyo Branch	Tokyo Bible House	Kantō, Koshinetsu Hokuriku
Kansai Branch	Ōsaka	Kinki, Chūgoku
Hokkaidō Depot	Sapporo	Hokkaidō
Tōhoku Depot	Sendai	Tōhoku
Nagoya Depot	Nagoya	Chūbu
Kyūshū Depot	Fukuoka	Kyūshū
Okinawa Depot	Naha	Okinawa & Ryukyus

(3) Colportage

Again our 70 colporteurs (40 full-time, 30 part-time) made a new distribution record in 1959. They distributed 1,226,711 copies, among them 3,855 New Testaments. In 1959 we sent out nine teams, each team organized with four members to visit house-to-house. They worked in the following prefectures: Hokkaido, Yamagata, Miyagi, Aichi, Gifu, Wakayama, Okayama, Kagawa, Yamaguchi, Oita, Saga and Kagoshima.

(4) Centenary Edition and Reference Bible

The Japan Bible Society published red-covered (leather ¥1,000., cloth ¥500.) centenary editions in commemoration of the centennial. These came out in May and 8,000 copies were sold by the end of October.

Work on the Reference Bible in Kogotai was started three years ago and is expected to appear in August of 1960.

(5) Visual Aid Activities

This year the film, "Our Bible, How It Came To Us," was displayed repeatedly. Because of the scarcity of technical workers, we have confined our operation to the areas around Tokyo. Also, a new film was received from the American Bible Society in 1959. If we could employ even one full-time staff member for this work, it would be possible to offer many services in the audio-visual field.

Bible exhibitions were held at 22 places. The number of Bible exhibitions was limited this year by the plan to hold a great centenary display at the time of Protestant Centennial Celebration (November 1-8) in Tokyo. Requests for exhibitions came more from secular schools and organizations than from Christian affiliates.

(6) South-east Asia Bible Society Conference

May 1-8, Mr. O. Beguin, general secretary of the United Bible Society, the Rev. K. G. McMillan, general secretary of the Canada Bible Society, Mr. D. Lancashire of the Hong Kong Bible House, and Mr. W. H. Groesbeck of the Philippine Bible House met in Tokyo and held a fruitful conference on Bible work in Southeast Asia. At the same time, public meetings and conferences with church leaders were held in Tokyo, Osaka and Kyoto. Fine opportunities were afforded to make known the world-wide work of the Bible societies to the Japanese churches.

After the visit of these leaders, general secretary T. Miyakoda attended the Southeast Asia Bible Society Conference held in Singapore under the auspices of United Bible Societies, May 27 — June 3. He also visited the Philippine Bible House in Manila and the Okinawa Bible Committee in Naha on his way back to Japan.

(7) Bibles for Emigrants and Typhoon Refugees

During 1959 the Japan Bible Society donated copies of the New Testament for emigrants to South America, especially Brazil. Also portions of Portugese and Japanese parallel "Marcos" were donated to all emigrants.

Great typhoons hit the Yamanashi area of this country on August 13th, and the Nagoya area on September 26th. Some 5,000 people died and thousands lost their homes. Nine hundred and ninety copies of the Bible were donated to church members who lost their Bibles in the disasters. 17,000 copies of Gospel portions were bought by Dr. Bob Pierce of "World Vision" and these were distributed by Christian students and church members who attached them to parcels of relief goods donated to the typhoon and flood refugees. EDUCATION ASSOCIATION OF CHRISTIAN SCHOOLS

The Education Association of Christian Schools is an association of seventy-eight church-related educational foundations comprising two hundred and eleven schools. Its purpose is "to contribute to the advance of education in Japan through the progress and development of education in the Christian schools." (From the Constitution of the Association.)

In 1958-1959 the Association carried on several activities to further this purpose. First, there were those activities under direct administration of the Association office; namely, the annual meeting of the Association, the meetings of the board of directors (Chairman, Dr. Hachiro Yuasa), the summer activities, assistance to various groups and a survey of religious education publications. In addition, the Association published in connection with the celebration of the Protestant Centennial a 500-page book on The Present Situation of Education in Christian Schools.

Next, let us consider the activities of the two standing committees of the Association, the Committee on the Study of Education and the Committee on Public Relations. 1) The former Committee (Chairman, Nobuhito Ota) is divided into three sections, one each dealing, respectively, with university education, education in high and junior high schools, and primary school education. Each section conducted its study, holding several discussion and report meetings. 2) The Committee on Public Relations (Chairman, Bunosuke Sekine) publishes a 4-page tabloid entitled

Education in Christian Schools, covering education in the school affiliated with the Association. It also published The Prospects and Task of Education in Christian Schools, parts II and III, a work of 150 pages.

The Association maintains chapters in Tohoku, Hokkaido, Kanto, Kansai and Seinan districts, each of which carries on its own program of activities, corresponding to those of the Committee on the Study of Education. These activities include training conferences for newly employed faculty of Christian schools, investigation of the problems of science teaching in Christian schools, etc. While the Association cooperated in all such activities or carried on similar activities as a modest contribution to the development of education in Japan, there have been certain problems with respect to education in Christian schools which have particularly taken our attention in the past two years. 1) First, there is the problem of reviewing the purpose of schools founded on Christian principles. In the prewar period, the number of students in Christian schools was small and education leading to Christian commitment was conducted with special intensity. In the postwar period, what is sought in education in Christian schools is not so much to "make Christians," but general education to the end of developing responsible and useful citizens. Thus the former "color" of schools founded and operating on Christian principles has changed; a new objective has been established. In order to meet the demands of today schools must train persons who can develop their own personalities and individualities. This is a common problem from the primary through the university years.

2) In the second place, there is the problem of the relation of the Christian school to the Church. Christian schools were started by the churches. But it is evident today that there is a very loose relationship between the Church and the schools. This has come about for two reasons: a) During the war the schools were cut off from their missions and were obliged to become independent of any ecclesiastical authority. b) After the war the churches were preoccupied with their own recovery and could scarcely give much attention to schools or social works. But recently, especially in connection with the celebration of the Centennial of Protestant mission and facing a new century of mission, the realization has come that evangelism will depend on a closer relationship of the churches and the schools. In a word, and in terms of the conclusions of two years of study and discussion conducted by this Association, school and church are founded on the common basis of inclusion in the holy, catholic, Church of Christ. The thorough understanding of this common foundation is the task challenging the Association's leadership in the years ahead.

3) In the third place, there is the problem of the relation of religion and culture. The special aspect of this problem with which we are concerned is the relation of Christianity and the subjects taught in the schools, the question of Christian truth in the "mission school." This, also, has been given much thought by the Association in the past two years. Thought has focused on the area of science education. For long it has been thought that science and Christianity were in contradiction; but it is coming to be realized that Christianity has had a major part in the development of science, that Christians should be able to understand and to contribute to the real significance and purpose of science. Success in the teaching of science in Christian schools will depend on understanding the proper relation of religion and science; and this is a matter of making the relation concrete. Again, here is a problem for all school years from the primary to the university.

Mission schools are now meeting these problems in a cooperative spirit and with the intention of solving them. To this end the Association is contributing its utmost.

THE NATIONAL YMCA IN 1959

The National YMCA took its part in the activities and programs scheduled throughout the nation in 1959 in commemoration of the 100th anniversary of Protestant Christian beginnings in Japan. These centennial plans were developed under the initiative of the National Christian Council.

The nationwide program of mutual assistance and co-operative YMCA enterprise, centered in the YMCA's of Japan's six largest cities (Tokyo, Yokohama, Osaka, Kobe, Kyoto and Nagoya), was both extended and reinforced during 1959. Strenuous efforts were carried out to help local Y's in the construction of their halls, development of more adequate staff, and the fulfillment of their scheduled activities and functions. Along this line we may call attention to the completion of recreation halls in Sapporo and Omi Hachiman, construction of a new main building for the Kanagawa Y, the development of extension work at the Y at Nagasaki University and the beginning of new construction at the Waseda University YMCA in Tokyo.

The National YMCA held its own general convention at the Tozanso in Gotemba, October 10-11. Two hundred and seventeen delegates representing local and school Y groups from all over Japan came to this convention to commemorate in a special way the centenary of Protestantism in this land.

Below is a list of the events and projects carried out by the National YMCA. Where other groups participated as joint sponsors, this is noted.

- 1) International Fellowship

- a) Four students were dispatched in April to a YMCA work camp in the Philippine Islands.
 - b) In April the fifth conference for training Asian YMCA leaders was held at the Tozanso in Gotemba. Thirteen Asian countries were represented by 118 delegates.
 - c) The second all-Asia convention of the International Y Men's Clubs also was held in April in Tokyo. Eighty seven Clubs from 13 nations sent 302 delegates to this great convention.
 - d) In July the Kobe YMCA joined with the National Y in sponsoring an international camp for 118 senior high boys. Campers came from five countries in the Pacific area.
- 2) Student and Youth Activities
- a) The 68th annual YMCA summer school was opened at the Tozanso in Gotemba in August. The YWCA was joint sponsor. The total number of students was 272, coming from 68 colleges and 27 school YMCA's.
 - b) Seven different geographical locations became sites of the local YMCA summer schools during July and August. Participating students totaled 592.
 - c) The Gotemba Tozanso was the place of meeting for the national Hi-Y conference in August. There were 51 high schools represented by 149 young men.
 - d) Between March and August 1959 four different conference sites were used for local Hi-Y student assemblies. In all 325 students from 74 schools participated in these meets.
 - e) Nearly 225 lay leaders converged on an Osaka suburb during December for their national conference. They came from 19 sections of Japan.
 - f) Earlier in the year, in May, local lay leaders' conferences were held in three different parts of Japan. These meetings drew 369 participants.

g) The sixth YMCA rural school attracted 55 persons from 12 prefectures to a Tokyo suburb early in January.

3) The YMCA Training and Research Institute

This is a special institute for the training of potential secretaries for the YMCA. In 1959 the enrollees were five in number and were sponsored by the Y's in Nagoya, Kyoto, Hiroshima, Himeji and Tokyo.

In addition many others attended the classes for leaders of recreation. A brief training seminar also was held for those who already are YMCA secretaries.

4) Publications

a) YMCA NEWS This monthly news sheet has a circulation throughout Japan of over 10,000.

b) Six books were published by the National Y during 1959 and 13 other books appeared in second editions.

5) Special Service Functions

The YMCA responded immediately and in force to the tremendous human need resulting from the disastrous Ise Bay Typhoon which struck the Chubu area late September. YMCA's from all over Japan participated in this work of disaster relief, but headquarters were established in the Nagoya YMCA. The Nagoya Y also led in the direction and housing of volunteer YMCA relief teams which came from all over the country in response to the call for workers.

Nearly 13,000 different people engaged in these relief operations and more than ¥2,000,000 (more than $5,000) was used in direct relief, in addition to the distribution of clothes, blankets, etc., that had been donated by YMCA's the nation over.

6) New Member Organizations

YMCA's were established during 1959 in Toyama and in Hikone, both of which affiliated with the National YMCA in October.

7) National YMCA Board Officers

The annual YMCA general convention in October elected Takeo Igarashi, Tokyo businessman, as its chairman and Shigeyuki Ogata, Tokyo businessman, and Nobuyuki Sakurai, professor at Aoyama Gakuin University, Tokyo, as vice chairmen. They will continue in office for two years.

THE JAPAN YWCA

The Japan Young Women's Christian Association operates on a program schedule set up by the national convention which meets every third year. The current program was adopted at the national convention in the fall of 1958 and is built around the theme, "Human Dignity." Activities based upon this great theme seek to promote the following two aspects of the theme:

- 1) The establishment of firm Christian faith in every YWCA member.
- 2) Encouragement to YWCA members to give close attention to events, wherever they may occur, that outragethe spirit of "human dignity ; " then each member is urged to take concrete action to fulfill her social responsibility.

1) As an illustration that Christian faith is being made resolute, we may point to the participation of the Japan 'YW' in the World YWCA Convention held last year in Mexico. YWCA members in this country exerted themselves in a total effort to raise funds sufficient to send the Japanese delegation. This strenuous effort not only had the effect of drawing all members together in common cause as Japanese YWCA people, it also made them joyously aware that their work is closely allied to a great world-wide Christian movement as it was represented by the many people gathered in Mexico for the World Convention.

Perhaps even more significant was the preparation for sending the Japanese delegation. The Japan YWCA took this opportunity to re-examine its own mission and responsibility as a Christian organization in a non-Christian society. This self-examination led YWCA people to reaffirm their own responsibilities as Christians in this society and opened the way for the strengthening of their individual Christian witness in terms of renewed faith.

2) The call to social concern with a focus on events throughout the world that threaten "human dignity" has met meaningful response. Japanese women, on the whole, lack adequate social consciousness. Their sense of individuality remains undeveloped because of slow-withering feudal social concepts. Therefore Japanese women still remain largely insensible to social responsibility.

Knowing this, every YWCA group has been engaged in studies of social issues and in practical expressions of social responsibility.

For instance, after reviewing records of several community surveys, YWCA people decided to promote a movement for "summer vacations for mothers." The aim of this project was to procure at least some leisure for mothers of low income homes whose lives give almost no pause from their daily drudge. After obtaining broad public awareness of its objectives, the YWCA was able to achieve vacations for some of these mothers and their brood. Those YWCAers who participated in this project were themselves blessed by the results achieved.

Members of the Kobe YWCA, after study of the Anti-Prostitution Law (passed in April 1959), counseled and provided aid for girls being rehabilitated according to the provisions of this law. One such effort to help was the 'Box of Love' movement, initiated with the purpose of making funds available upon request to such rehabilitees. Other programs similar to this are being carried out elsewhere. In all such cases, the YWCA people who participate have experienced strengthened character and Christian personality.

Social and community service functions carried out by local branches also include the following:

a) Completion of Labor Centers in Nagoya

Labor centers were built in various industrial areas of the city where home and small factories predominate. These centers provide dormitories and leisure-time programs for laboring women with low incomes.

b) In Osaka at the Omiya-cho Center a program for preparation of formulae and the bottle-feeding of babies of working mothers was begun. This program is unique in Osaka.

c) Child Care in Fukuoka

The YWCA in Fukuoka during after-school hours is now taking care of children from homes on social security or where there are no mothers. Such care is limited to children who have completed the YWCA-operated nursery school course and continues from the closing of school until the working parent(s) return home.

YWCAs from all over Japan participated in the disaster relief programs carried out in the wake of the tragic Ise Bay Typhoon, which struck the Chubu area of Japan's main island in the fall of 1959. Cooperation with other Christian organizations also brought relief to depression-struck mining families in Kyushu. The YWCA engaged in a specific program for the digging of new wells in such economically blighted coal mining areas.

The Japan YWCA also entered into the United Nations' 'World Refugee Year' program. This activity on behalf of refugees gave opportunity for increased understanding of the deep significance of the phrase "human dignity" as this applies to thousands who are uprooted and homeless as a result of political tyranny and human indifference in our world today.

THE JAPAN WOMEN'S CHRISTIAN TEMPERANCE UNION

The Japan Women's Christian Temperance Union during fiscal 1959 continued its policy of aggressively promoting the three great goals, each marked by the initials "W.P.": World Peace, World Purity and World Prohibition. In keeping with this program of steady advance, the WCTU completed its new four story national headquarters building on October 31. The new headquarters, fruit of seven years' planning and fund raising, occupies a strategic site facing Okubo station—a section of Metropolitan Tokyo that has assumed prominence in recent years. The building also boasts a basement and a sub-basement. The cross and white ribbon, familiar WCTU symbols, placed atop this large building will witness to thousands of commuters each day as they travel the Central Line of the National Railways.

The WCTU in Japan is organized into three department, one for each of the three great goals for which it struggles:

1) The Department of World Peace

The WCTU pursued with militant vigor its objective of world peace. The Union, in collusion with other peace groups such as The Christian Council for the Promotion of Peace, The council for A-H Bomb Prohibition and The Association for the Preservation of the Peace Constitution, continued its radical opposition to national rearmament, its vigorous protests against nuclear weapons and worked against ratification of the Revised Japan-U.S. Mutual Security Treaty. All these activities were based on the spirit of the so-called "peace constitution."

2) The Department of World Purity

The two years that have passed since enactment of the Anti-Prostitution Law have seen that law abused in many ways. The public calls this law the "Loop-hole Law." Whatever its defects, the WCTU still works to improve conditions according to the spirit of the law, which means that prostitution is now officially recognized as a crime and a liability to society. With this attitude the WCTU continues its behind-the-scenes investigations and promotes the extension and completion of rehabilitation homes and facilities for girls who want to get away from their past activities and become useful members of society.

3) The Department of World Prohibition

It is a great encouragement that the WCTU has realized some fruit from its incessant labors in behalf of the prohibition movement. This has been true in spite of strong opposition from governmental representatives because our government depends to some degree upon liquor taxes for revenue.

Concrete achievements include:

- a) The inclusion of results of scientific tests on the ill effects of drinking as a part of the high school social studies curriculum since 1958.
- b) The establishment of protection stations for drunks in larger cities such as Osaka, Nagoya, Tokyo, Yokohama, etc.
- c) The enforcement of a law that prohibits intoxicated persons from driving cars.
- d) Some fair court sentences have been issued because of rising public opinion against the notoriously lax treatment of drunks who commit crimes. Sentiment against the idea that "a drunk is not responsible for his acts" continues to increase.

Of course the WCTU has never slackened its efforts to persuade government ministers of the need to punish vicious drinkers more vigorously and to set up centers for the social rehabilitation of problem drinkers. Anchoring its hope in the rising generation, the WCTU continues its program of positive education for the future social health of Japan.

THE AUDIO VISUAL ACTIVITIES COMMISSION (AVACO)

On October 24, 1959, AVACO celebrated the tenth anniversary of its founding. In 1949, when it began, AVACO had no staff, no room or equipment, and an annual budget provided of only about five hundred dollars. On its tenth anniversary, AVACO could point to solid achievements, through the Grace of God, in the fields of radio evangelism, leadership training, assistance to churches, church schools and missionaries, production of AV materials, and assistance to other countries in Asia. In addition, AVACO's annual budget now approaches $60,000 a year with 70% of this amount raised in Japan. AVACO staff includes almost forty persons, all Japanese except one. The Christian Audio Visual Center building, built with the help of mission boards of North America, and its equipment, are conservatively valued at $150,000. During 1959 a four story addition costing $24,000 was added giving much needed space for AVACO's greatly expanded program.

1959 was the last year of AVACO's five year plan laid out in 1954.

AVACO's stated objectives for the year 1959 were:

1. To complete the facilities of the Christian Audio Visual Center.
2. To continue the movement for education of the churches on adequate and effective use of the mass media and audio-visual aids in evangelism and education.
3. The training of Christian church school teachers and leaders in the use of AV materials and methods through workshops and other means.

4. To carry out effective Christian broadcasting over private and government stations and be of all help possible to Christian broadcasters in Japan.

5. To provide in the AVACO library the best of films, filmstrips, slides and other AV materials.

6. To provide facilities and courses for training young people in broadcasting and stage drama and related techniques.

7. The production of AV materials and equipment.

8. The exchange of materials and information with other countries through the Asia Office.

9. Cooperation with the celebration by the various churches of the 100th anniversary of the beginning of Protestant missions in Japan.

With the devoted help of the Board of Directors and its committees, under the chairmanship of Bishop Augustine T. Takase, and with Matthew S. Ogawa as Executive Director, AVACO has made progress on each of these goals during the year.

Broadcasting

The Broadcasting Committee, under the chairmanship of Rev. Takihiro Yamakita, planned and carried out through the AVACO staff a varied program of broadcasting by radio and TV.

A special liaison sub-committee, also chaired by Rev. Yamakita, in regular contact with the national radio (NHK) religious broadcasting division, interpreted the viewpoint of Protestant Christians and made suggestions for programming and speakers, which made possible forty-six different Protestant broadcasts over the nation-wide government network. Two of these were special seasonal broadcasts and two featured the AVACO Broadcasting Chorus.

AVACO's main emphasis, however, is on broadcasting over private stations. Each week AVACO produced three fifteen minute programs. These, together with re-broadcasts of three series of former years, provided for five hundred and forty-four separate broadcasts of one of the six programs over one each of twenty-three different stations over Japan.

AVACO's own SONGS OF THE HEART program, including hymns and a short talk, is completely sponsored and produced by AVACO. SONGS OF THE HEART was broadcast during 1959 on two stations, Radio Kobe and Radio Shizuoka, on sustaining time, and on one station in Tokyo on purchased time. In addition, AVACO produces FRIEND OF THE HEART, a fifteen minute program, using a story-telling format, for the United Church of Christ. The United Church provides the scripts and pays for the air time purchase.

The other broadcasts of AVACO are on sustaining (free) time. Now being regularly produced is WOMEN'S TALK, a program which includes documentary drama, visits to Christian institutions or interviews with famous Christians. Old programs still being rebroadcast include: THE KNOCK ON THE DOOR, KODAN (Japanese story-teller narrating the lives of great Christians), and MY MUSIC (interpretation of famous Christian classical music).

In addition, AVACO provided on tape for Okinawa and Manila Christian short wave broadcasting facilities (FEBC) one hundred forty three separate broadcasts of three separate broadcasts of three programs. These were broadcast on Okinawa and back to Japan by short wave during 1959.

All of these broadcasting activities were carried out on a budget of approximately $15,000,

In the field of television, the American Bible Society's Nativity film and AVACO's production, "The Good Soil", were both televised during the year by a number of stations. In addition, at Christmas time, AVACO was able to arrange and act as advisor for three Christmas TV programs. Televised on Christmas Eve in Tokyo, there were three candlelight worship services, each sponsored by a Christian businessman. Several days earlier AVACO related people participated in a roundtable discussion concerning Christmas and its meaning for Christians. This was broadcast over a network of 23 stations all over Japan.

Related to broadcasting activities are the drama school and the AVACO broadcasting chorus. Each week the AVACO drama school is convened three nights for two hours of college level training in radio and other drama taught by professionals of long experience. The AVACO broadcasting chorus of forty voices is a voluntary group which records each Thursday evening the hymns used on the Songs of the Heart program.

In the Fall four EP records, containing twelve hymns by the AVACO chorus and four performed on chimes, were released jointly by AVACO and the Japan Victor Company.

Rental of AVACO's studio space, when not in use for Christian projects, was the largest factor which made it possible for AVACO to raise seventy percent of its overall budget in Japan. The Lutheran Hour also made use of the AVACO studios for recording its choir, and Aoyama Gakuin University used these facilities for its courses in radio journalism.

Projected Aids

The Projected Aids Committee, under the chairmanship of Rev. Atsumi Tasaka, planned the advancement of the library and programs of film evangelism. During the year Japanese soundtracks were added to 19 western films by the magnastripe recording system, and one film by optical system. These included the ten films of the Book of Acts Series produced by Family Films. Half of the expense of these ten soundtracks was paid by the Japan Evangelical Lutheran Mission. There are now a total of 47 films in the AVACO library with Japanese sound on magnetic or optical, which greatly increases the effectiveness of the library.

During 1959 there were 975 borrowings of individual films, many of these for extended programs of evangelism. Four thousand copies of filmstrips were sent out over Japan, over a thousand borrowings of kamishibai were recorded, besides illuminated kamishibai, ebanashi, flannel-graph and other non-projected aids. These figures only apply to the central library in Tokyo.

The United Church of Christ used six AVACO films and AVACO projectors for a total of over seventy days of film evangelism in various parts of Japan during the year. Such film evangelism is now planned by a special committee of the United Church called the "Mass Penetration Evangelism Committee". This committee also has responsibility for carrying out, in cooperation with AVACO, evangelism through radio, including "Friend of the Heart" program mentioned above.

One of the significant steps taken during 1959 with regard to evangelism through the mass media, was the approval by AVACO and the NCC of the establishment of a Hokkaido branch of AVACO to be called HOREMCO (Hokkaido Evangelism through Radio and Mass Communication). Special funds, raised by Rev. Evyn Adams and given through the Methodist board of missions, will be used for an extensive program of evangelism using radio, films, literature and other means. Episcopal and Lutheran churches are participating in the committee as well as the United Church.

1959 saw the comprehensive library catalogue of AVACO's library printed in Japanese with descriptive comments on filmstrips as well as films and listings of all materials and services provided through AVACO. Formerly catalogues have been mimeographed.

In the field of film production, AVACO was able to complete the import of a professional quality, completely equipped, ARRIFLEX 16 mm. motion picture camera, to be used in the future for film production, especially evangelistic films for TV and film evangelism. Short films were produced on E. Stanley Jones' evangelism in Japan, on the visit of the Archbishop of Canterbury, and AVACO also cooperated in shooting footage for a film on industrial evangelism and edited and put sound on TV film footage to provide a short film on the 100th anniversary celebration in Japan.

A special film evaluation committee was set up under the leadership of Rev. Robert Bruns, serving as secretary to the United Church's Film Evangelism Committee. This committee previewed and evaluated twelve films during the year. Their recommendations helped the different conferences of the United Church to set up film evangelism programs. Extended programs of film evangelism were carried out in five districts.

Non-projected Aids

The non-projected aids and drama committee, meeting under the leadership of Rev. Takao Ito, Baptist, discussed and made plans covering a wide range of matters.

The AVACO magazine continued its new policy and format which tied it in closely with the widely used NCC curriculum. In addition to practical suggestions on AV aids for use with each lesson and each age level, some AV aid, such as flannelgraph, map or cut-outs, is included with each issue of the magazine.

The AVACO magazine Readers Club met several times during the year at the Christian AV Center and planned and conducted among their many activities, a workshop on paper setups, a caravan to Yamagata Prefecture and various kinds of assistance to church schools in the Tokyo area.

While AVCO's production of non-projected aids was carried out mainly through the magazine, production of the ebanashi, and illuminated kamishibai was continued and these two aids were made available through the library on a rental basis for the first time, whereas formerly they had been only for sale. In addition, complete sets of flannelgraph backgrounds are on sale from the library for use with the figures provided through the AVACO magazine.

Workshops

AVACO's tenth annual workshop at Naka-karuizawa brought together more than four hundred and fifty persons to study one or two of fourteen courses each. In addition, AVACO sponsored a total of eight regional workshops for training projector operators, in the field of radio, or AV methods and materials, including one all day workshop on the silk screen process held in cooperation with the AV class of International Christian University. In addition, AVACO leaders participated in conferences or research meetings of other organizations such as the Church School Department curriculum conferences.

Research and Overseas Services

AVACO continued its research on AV materials and equipment, continuing production of the AVACO kerosene and 750W electric projector, and developing prototypes of a 16 mm. filmstrip projector and a magnetic playback attachment for the Ampro moving picture projector. Another is being developed for the Bell and Howell.

The Asia Office, set up at AVACO by the East Asia Conference on Christian Mass Communication, answered dozens of inquiries concerning Japanese materials and equipment, and exported items as diverse as poster colors and transistor radios, to various Asian countries, and even as far as Latin America and Africa.

In April, Matthew Ogawa and Vern Rossman traveled to Malaya for a meeting of the EACCMC and were also present at the inaugural assembly of the East Asia Christian Conference. At this committee meeting Matthew Ogawa was appointed one of three directors for the Southeast Asia Radio Program, and in connection with this proposal for broadcasting by short wave from the Philippines, traveled also to Hong Kong, Bangkok and Djakarta.

AVACO also continued its miscellaneous services, counselling missionaries and Japanese churches on purchasing of equipment, duplication of slides, and the like.

100th Anniversary Celebration

Cooperating with the NCC in the 100th anniversary celebration of the beginning of Protestant missions in Japan, AVACO helped arrange coverage of the affair in radio and TV, produced a documentary film, contributed personnel, helped arrange the anniversary exhibit and produced material for English language news coverage.

New Department

During 1959, in addition to the General Affairs Department, the Engineering Department, the Library Department, and the Production Department, an Art Department was added, under the direction of Mr. Hiroyuki Nakagawa. Mr. Nakagawa, a Lutheran, is a graduate of a school of still photography and is also an expert on design and layout work of various sorts. Under his care is also the AVACO photography lab which is capable of handling all sorts of black and white photographic work.

THE FELLOWSHIP OF CHRISTIAN MISSIONARIES 1959-60

The Fellowship of Christian Missionaries in Japan was organized in 1936 as the successor to the Federation of Christian Missions which had served since 1902 as the formal clearing house for missionary activity in Japan. The actual beginning dates back to 1872 and until the formation of the National Christian Council in 1923 it assumed responsibility for policy and strategy of the Protestant witness in Japan. After this it gradually restricted itself until in 1936 the progress of the indigenous church argued for reorganization into a body for fellowship, education and inspiration.

The Fellowship of Christian Missionaries aims at bringing together missionaries of all confessions in an atmosphere of freedom and voluntary unity that can both enrich and strengthen the cause of Christ in Japan. The FCM does not formulate a creed nor does it require assent to any particular statement of faith. It does assume that anyone coming into the fellowship is of evangelical Christianity, and believes that he will be enriched by finding and enjoying a serious fellowship with other Christian missionaries, irrespective of denomination. The hand of welcome is extended to every missionary on an individual basis. Thus, the FCM operates in a different region of need than other missionary organizations, and it is possible for a missionary to hold concurrent membership in this and other missionary groups without a duplication of purpose or a conflict of interest.

As part of its larger program of fellowship, education and inspiration, the FCM sponsors each year an Annual Conference of several days duration, generally held either at Karuizawa or Lake Nojiri. Since, however, 1959 was the Centennial Year for Protestantism in Japan, a special program was given on the campus of International Christian University, July 21-24, under the theme, "God's Way With A People." The 1960 Annual Conference is scheduled for Lake Nojiri, July 26-28th.

The FCM has regional districts, one in the Kanto and one in the Kansai; these have inspirational meetings of shorter duration throughout the year.

The FCM also sponsors The Japan Christian Quarterly, which is "an independent journal of Christian thought;" and through it, seeks to provide in the English language a record and an interpretation of the Christian movement in Japan. It endeavors to promote the strength and unity of the Body of Christ in Japan through constructive discussion of all phases of Christian work. In 1959, The Quarterly featured various aspects of the 100 years of Protestant Missionary work, providing unusually significant survey articles and historical data, with an eye toward trying to interpret the role and situation of the Church in the new century ahead. The January 1960 Quarterly has published the main addresses of the special Centennial Conference at ICU.

The FCM officers up to July 24, 1959 were: President, Rev. James Cogswell; Vice-president, Rev. Wilbur Fridell; Secretary, Rev. Norman Nuding; Treasurer, Dr. George Hays, with Miss Virginia Highfill assisting. The officers through July, 1960 are: President, William D. Bray; Vice-president, Rev. Anders Hoaas; Secretary, Miss Mary McCrimmon; Treasurer, Rev. Calvin Parker.

CENTENNIAL YEAR ACTIVITIES OF E.M.A.J.

Chagrined by the painful fact that still after 100 years of Protestant labor in Japan, millions of Japanese continue without clear knowledge that Jesus died for them and rose again according to the Scripture, EMAJ strongly encouraged Centennial Evangelistic Crusades throughout the nation from the Spring of 1959. To assist missionaries and pastors in this endeavor, EMAJ designed and printed colorful posters and tracts-hundreds of copies went out to every prefecture to assist in evangelistic campaigns. About 360 cities and villages reported special Centennial Gospel efforts. Simultaneously area prayer meetings were held in Osaka, Kobe, Fukushima, Niigata, and Tokyo.

Typhoon Vera cut its devastating swath through Ise Bay on September 29th. EMAJ was immediately challenged to throw its weight into relief operations. An EMAJ Emergency Relief Committee (Kobayashi, Kedo, Harada, Bennett) was formed; OPERATION FUTON was launched. Hundreds of dollars from evangelical missionaries and pastors were channelled through this committee: 475 futons, 244 food and clothing parcels were delivered, 9 damaged churches were assisted. EMAJ's principle of relief work was to first assist destitute Christian families, and seekers near the churches. Unbelievers were also helped, but through believers' hands and in close relation with local churches. These same churches are cooperating in the coming EMAJ NAGOYA TYPHOON FOLLOW-UP CRUSADE, Minami Ku, August 29-Sept. 2. with Evangelist Honda.

In October, 1959, the historic EMAJ Strategy Conference was held in Tokyo, convening mission leaders from over 45 societies. Matters considered were (a) joint literature projects, (b) evangelical radio challenge, (c) methods for erecting utility churches, (d) comity. The principles of comity generally agreed upon are as follows:

(a) We recognize the principle of "brotherly Christian love" in all our evangelical church planting labors. (b) One church in a large population area does not close the area to pioneer evangelism by other evangelical groups. (c) A church planting plan which follows the migration pattern of Japanese believers to surrounding villages and towns is a valid strategy, but if we follow this pattern, we must be careful not to overlook the needy prefectures and areas in an effort to just build another church. (d) Before we as missions or missionaries enter new areas where other missions or missionaries are laboring, we extend them the courtesy of a personal call and open discussion of our church planting objectives in the area. (e) We shall attempt to honour the principle of church discipline in all our areas. (f) We shall attempt to acquaint our sister Japanese church organizations with the above 5 principles. As an outgrowth of this Strategy Conference, the Evangelical Mission Liaison Commission is now in the forming process.

In November 1959 the Japan Protestant Centennial Celebrations were held throughout the nation. Though not an EMAJ activity, EMAJ related missionaries worked with this movement and gave sacrificially to see these meetings undertaken. Dr. Rogar Nicole of Gordon Divinity School, Dr. Edward Young, Westminster Seminary, and Dr. Oswald Smith, Toronto, were principle speakers. "THE BIBLE IS GOD'S INFALLIBLE WORD" was keynote of the conventions; pastors and missionaries alike were spiritually uplifted and challenged anew to minister faithfully God's Holy Word.

At present over 500 missionaries from 47 different societies and 11 countries are within E.M.A.J. The unfinished task of covering Japan in our generation with a permanent Gospel witness remains as our great challenge to united voice and action in Japan evangelism.
